TWO MEN FOUND DEAD IN PARKS

"INSANE" PLEA OF HAINS

Hear Hisgen, Osgood, Auerbach To-night

See Them for Yourselves, and Make Up Your Mind About the New Party

As many of our readers as possible should go to Tremont Temple tonight to SEE FOR THEMSELVES what kind of men are the leaders of the new Independence party.

Thomas L. Hisgen, the candidate for President; William N. Osgood, the candidate for Governor; Robert J. McCartney, the labor union candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and former Congressman M. W. Howard of Alabama, will be there and will speak.

It was hoped that Mr. Hearst also would be present, but a late message received from New York indicates that he probably will not be able to attend. Whether Mr. Hearst comes or not, there will be an important message for the voters of Massachusetts to hear.

There will be seats for everybody. Benavente's excellent band will play from 7 to 8 p. m. Between the speeches ,which begin at 8 p. m., the band will play selections from the musical compositions of Thomas L. Hisgen—pretty good evidence that Mr. Hisgen can do some things besides sell oil.

Those who find it more convenient may go to the Dudley Street Opera House, where Mr. Hisgen and Mr. Osgood will both speak.

Washington A. Coles, the eloquent blind man who is a candidate for the Senate in that district, will preside over the meeting in the Dudley Street Opera House and will make one of his characteristic speeches. You cannot do better than to go there if for no other purpose than to CHEER WASHINGTON COLES.

We hope that those of our readers who live in the Ninth Congressional District will go to Faneuil Hall, in which a meeting in behalf of the candidacy of Junius T. Auerbach for Congress will be held tonight. Mr. Hisgen will speak in Faneuil Hall as well as in Tremont Temple and the Dudley Street Opera House.

FENWAY MYSTERY BAFFLES THE POLICE

FAIL TO LEARN IDENTITY OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN PARKWAY.

The identity of the woman whose body was found in the Fenway near the Charlesgate West bridge early to-day remains a mystery. The autopsy made by Medical Examiner McDonald removes all suspicion as to the cause of death, which was found to have been natural.

The medical examiner gave a more detailed description of the woman and her clothing than did the police, with a hope of finding her relatives.

The woman was, he says, fifty years old, five feet eight inches tall, weighed 170 pounds, had blue eyes, dark brown hair, with a little gray in it. She had no upper teeth, and had a medium complexion.

Her clothing was a black silk waist, black hose and shoes. One shoe has not been found.

The police searched until noon in the bushes and all around where the body was found to find the shoe and other evidence, but found nothing.

James F. Donnelly of No. 21 Cambria street, an instructor in the Park Riding School, on his way to work, found the body. It lay near the path through which he was walking.

Dead Less Than an Hour.

The body lay on its back with hands clasped over the breast. The woman had not been dead more than an hour, as rigor mortis was just beginning.

The police made a careful search for marks of violence, but found nothing abnormal about the body save that the lips were unusually blue. This, they think, might mean poisoning. The absence of one shoe was thought peculiar. The case is very mysterious.

Medical Examiner William McDonald ordered the body taken to the City Hospital morgue, and Undertaker Gilmore took it in charge. After the removal of the body the police continued to search every inch of the ground for half a mile about the place.

DOG ATTRACTED ATTENTION.

James F. Donnelly, who found the body, said he was walking along the path known as Ipswich street, when he heard a dog barking furiously over near the clump of trees.

"It was a fine Boston terrier," he said, "and acted almost human. As I approached it seemed glad, and running to me wagged its tail and then scampered off to the bushes. Several times it did this, leading me there as plainly as could a human being. All I could see was the woman's legs sticking out of the bushes. I thought she was asleep. I feared to touch her and waited until Tom Blain and Dan Connelly, who work in the same place with me, came along.

"She's not asleep, she's dead," said Connelly after he gently kicked one of the feet with his boot. We then tried to rouse her and saw that she was really dead. The dog waited only long enough to see that we had taken the case away from him and then ran as fast as he could go. It was uncanny the way he acted."

Donnelly kept guard while the other men went to the station and brought the police.

BOSTON VESSEL CRIPPLED.

FERNANDINA, Fla., Oct. 26.—The American barkentine Arlington of Boston was towed into port, having been picked up off the bar in distress. She ran into a gale off Hatteras and was blown back south. Her foretopmast is gone and the vessel is otherwise damaged.

DEMOCRATIC CITY FORCES IN DISPUTE

There is a dispute on between President William F. McClellan of the Democratic City Committee and John J. Driscoll, assistant secretary of the organization on the one hand and Daniel J. McDonald, Secretary, on the other. President McClellan issued a call for Democratic city primaries for choice of ward and city committees for Thursday, November 19. McDonald says in effect that McClellan's action is an usurpation of his prerogative. McDonald says:

"I was very much surprised upon learning the call for the city primaries had been issued. As secretary of the city committee the duty and right to issue that call is vested in me. Of course the secretary of the city committee consults with the chairman of the Democratic City Committee before fixing upon a date. I have not laid eyes upon or consulted with Chairman William F. McClellan for at least two weeks, although I have been a daily visitor to the Democratic City Committee rooms.

"We are in the midst of a State campaign. Our candidate for Governor, James H. Vahey, urged me to keep the opening of the city campaign as far away from the State election as possible. This I agreed to do, but for reasons best known to themselves, and obviously not in the interests of the State ticket, the parties who control the city machinery have issued a call which precipitates the city campaign into the closing days of the State campaign.

"Had I been consulted I would have followed the wishes of our candidate, Mr. Vahey, and withheld the calling of the city primaries until the last possible day, thereby giving the party workers in Boston every opportunity to do justice to the State ticket.

"As secretary of the city committee I shall not contest the validity of the call issued, but shall be on hand to receive the papers in my official capacity at the time and place mentioned in the call."

The papers will be issued at 5 o'clock to-day at the Democratic City Committee rooms, and they can be filed at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

BRYAN MAKES AN AUTO DASH INTO JERSEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Missing his train on the Erie by a few seconds, William J. Bryan was compelled to-day to make a wild dash in an automobile through mud-covered roads to Paterson, N. J., in order to keep his word with the people of that city, given last Saturday, that he would return and make them a political speech.

The Democratic candidate arose at 6 a. m., and thought he would have ample time to get to Jersey City and board the Erie train leaving there at 7:10 a. m. He was greatly disappointed, and his manner indicated that he would have liked to give vent to his pent-up wrath because the railroad officials would not hold the train the short time needed for him to get aboard.

The day promised to be a busy one for Mr. Bryan. His program provides for an address before the Woman's Democratic Club in this city, and speeches at Yonkers, White Plains, Port Chester, New Rochelle and Mt. Vernon, a reception and dinner at the National Democratic Club in this city, and speeches at Cooper Union, the Palm Garden and Madison Square Garden.

Slayer of Annis, Arraigned To-day, Says Not Guilty—Brother Makes Similar Plea, but Does Not Allege Insanity.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Captain Peter Conover Hains, slayer of William E. Annis, entered a plea of not guilty of murder in the first degree, and a secondary plea of not guilty on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the act, in the Supreme Court at Flushing to-day.

His brother, T. Jenkins Hains, also indicted for murder in the first degree as accessory and principal in the killing of Annis, likewise entered a plea of not guilty. He made no defence of insanity. The pleas were entered through John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the Hains brothers, who reserved the right to withdraw the pleas. Justice Garretson disallowed the demurrer filed by Mr. McIntyre to the indictment against T. Jenkins Hains. The case will come up again in Flushing on Monday next, when the date of the trial will be fixed.

Both the Hains brothers were clean shaven when they reached court today. When he was last arraigned T. Jenkins Hains wore beard and mustache, while Captain Hains had shaved off his mustache. To-day the two men had removed every sign of hirsute adornment.

They were taken to Flushing together from the Queens County jail in Long Island City in an automobile handcuffed together and guarded by sheriffs. They returned to jail in the same vehicle.

"Mrs. —— at Bottom of It."

Extracts from a letter signed "Claudia" were given out to-day by Joseph A. Shay, associate counsel with John F. McIntyre, for the Hains brothers.

The letter was made public at the outset of the proceedings in Supreme Court to-day on the demurrer filed by John F. McIntyre to the indictment against T. Jenkins Hains. It was dated May 18, and addressed to Captain Hains on board the United States army transport Cook at San Francisco. In part, it is as follows:

"My Dearest Husband—I said I would like to go automobiling to-day and she (referring to a mutual woman friend) said she didn't see why I shouldn't, with two in the family, joking about Billy. I told her I couldn't use his automobile all the time, as Mrs. Annis should have it some of the time.

"There is some scandal afloat about —— and myself. We don't know what it is, but think Mrs. —— is at the bottom of it. He used to bring eggs or ask me over, or little things like that. He didn't knock, but whistled. Mrs. K. had heard it up shore road.

"'Ain't it awful, Mabel?' See what a mess I'm in. Last night we made Mrs. —— come home with us. I seem to breed trouble.

"I don't care." Tanguay.

Your loving wife,
'CLAUDIA.'

"I Am Going to Boston."

Counsel for the Hains brothers also made public a letter to William E. Annis. The letter is as follows:

"June 1, 1908.

"Dear Billy—Don't come over Monday morning. Everything is over between Peter and me. He has found out everything.

"I am going to Boston. Will send you my address. I want to see you. I am almost crazy. Good-by.

"CLAUDIA."

The letter was addressed to Annis at his business address, No. 4 West Twenty-second street.

The names omitted from the first letter, Mr. Shay explained, are those of a friend of Captain Hains and his wife. The Hains lawyer contends that after Captain Hains received a number of such letters, he immediately obtained leave of absence and returned to Fort Hamilton.

Mrs. Hains in Boston gave out a statement to-day declaring that letters written by Lieutenant Andrus to her husband and given out by his lawyers had been purposely distorted to injure her and her case.

TAFT SPEAKS IN CONNECTICUT WITH LILLEY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 26.—William H. Taft was given a [illegible]-arranged reception here to-day, and he involved the Republican leaders in a broil when he appeared on the same platform with George L. Lilley, the Republican nominee for Governor. Bets amounting to a big fortune had been made that Taft would refuse to go on the platform with Lilley. He and Lilley reached the armory at 12:45 this afternoon. Taft reached here at 12:30, was met by three marching clubs and the party headed by the old "wide awakes" of the '60 campaign, escorted him to the Second Regiment Armory. The speakers there included Taft, Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan and Walker C. Emerson of Portland, Me.

In Taft's automobile were Governor Woodruff and Michael Kenealy, chairman of the State Central Committee. On the reception committee were Frederick F. Brewster, director in the Standard Oil Company, and son of its late treasurer; Samuel Hemenway, president of the biggest bank here; Thomas G. Bennett, president of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company; Eli Whitney, president of the New Haven Water Company, and Colonel Isaac Ullman, the Connecticut Republican boss.

Taft's train left for New York city on the return trip at 1:30.

ONE BODY IN COMMON; ONE IN PUBLIC GARDEN

Two men were picked up dead, one in the Public Gardens and the other in the Common, within ten minutes this afternoon. The first man was found dead in the Public Gardens on a much traversed path near Charles street. The condition of the lips indicated some kind of poison. On the lining of his coat was found the name of Bernie Sheridan, which also appeared on a pawn ticket. This man was about [illegible] years old, five feet eight inches tall, 140 pounds in weight, of sandy complexion, with sandy moustache and dark hair. He wore a light blue serge coat, plaid vest and light [illegible] trousers.

The second man is believed to have been employed by L. P. Hollander in Boylston street, near Park square, and his name Stevens. He was found dead on the grass in the Common near Mason street. He was a man of middle age, had blue eyes and was bald. He wore a black coat, [illegible] and dark trousers. Death in this case appears to have been from heart disease. Medical Examiner McDonald had both bodies taken to the City Hospital morgue.

MEDICAL EXAMINER'S WIFE HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Mrs. A. H. Hodgdon, wife of Medical Examiner Hodgdon, was thrown out of her carriage to-day in front of [illegible] Maple place, Dedham, and had both wrists [illegible]. The horse ran several blocks before it was caught.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT 50 TOMORROW.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, will celebrate his fiftieth birthday anniversary to-morrow.

$1,000,000 STOCK IN MORSE LINES MISSING

SO SAYS CASHIER AT TRIAL—$126,000 CHECK DRAWN ON $3,000 ACCOUNT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The startling fact that $1,000,000 of the stock of the Consolidated Steamship Company, listed as being in the possession of the Bank of North America, had disappeared and could not be found, was brought here to-day, in the cross-examination of Cashier Wire, of the bank, at the trial of Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, charged with overcertification and violating other of the banking laws.

Ex-Judge Olcott, questioning the witness for the defence, brought out the fact that the securities were missing.

"I do not know where the stock was," the witness testified.

Havemeyer Startled.

An effort was made to show that William H. Havemeyer had loans in the bank in the name of Miss J. A. Smith, his secretary. Mr. Havemeyer succeeded Curtis as president of the bank and was present in court to-day. He flushed when the questions were asked and appeared greatly relieved when they were withdrawn upon objection by United States District Attorney Stimson.

Evidence also was adduced to show that Morse drew a check for $126,000 in favor of Otto Heinze & Co. three days before the bank of North America suspended, and while his cash balance was but $3,000.

Cashier Wire, answering questions of Assistant District Attorney Wise, related the details of the transaction. He declared that on October 15 he refused to sanction the loan to Heinze & Co. because he knew that the bank's reserve had already gone under the required 25 per cent. of the deposits.

"I had talked the situation over with Mr. Curtis and he knew of the condition," said the cashier. "Why, Curtis told me on October 13 that the bank's reserve was all loaned up, and there was very little call money."

Morse's Personal Fund.

Examination the next day showed the reserve fund had dropped to 20 per cent. of the deposits, Wire said.

"The next day Otto Heinze & Co. applied for the $126,000 loan and I refused it," the witness said.

"The matter was referred to Mr. Curtis, and later in the day F. Augustus Heinze called at the ban kand saw Mr. Curtis and Mr. Morse."

"The following day the note for $126,000, signed by C. W. Morse, was returned from the Clearing House," Wire testified.

"The check had been drawn on his personal account and paid by the Mercantile National Bank. I called the matter to the attention of Miss Wilson and told her the condition of Mr. Morse's account."

The government's counsel showed that the check had been held by Morse from 10 a. m. on the morning of the 16th until after 3 p. m. because of lack of funds to meet it.

The check was held up until Morse drew on his special reserve of collateral to back up the paper.

Mr. Morse put up a block of securities to make the rate good. It amounted to $211,000.

KERN'S SON IMPROVES.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 26.—A marked improvement in the condition of John W. Kern, Jr., was noted yesterday, and this will enable his father, Democratic nominee for Vice-President, to continue his speechmaking, it is understood.

"My son is much better," said Mr. Kern. "We feel hopeful about his condition now, and I will leave on my campaign trip as had been planned."

AUERBACH TO-NIGHT IN FANEUIL HALL

Junius T. Auerbach, Independence party candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, will speak to-night in Faneuil Hall. Cornelius J. Desmond will also make an address, and Grenville S. MacFarland will be chairman.

To-morrow night Mr. Auerbach speaks in Roughan Hall, Charlestown, and James P. Hayes will be chairman. Cornelius J. Desmond is also scheduled for an address.

2000 GERMANS CHEER HISGEN AND HEARST

Independence Party Chiefs Hailed with Acclaim at Astor House Meeting.

TRUST FIGHTER LAUDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The German Independence Committee tendered a reception to the leaders of the Independence party yesterday at the Hotel Astor, and it was attended by a throng of representative Teutons of Greater New York. They filled the grand ball room and overflowed into the smaller one and the hallways.

"Personal liberty without license" was the keynote of the sentiment expressed by the German citizens who were present. They were as sincere a body of men as ever assembled in this city. More than 2,000 of them warmly greeted Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts, Independence party candidate for President of the United States. Others who were welcomed with acclaim were John Temple Graves, candidate for Vice-President; Clarence J. Shearn, candidate for Governor of New York, and William Randolph Hearst. When one speaker announced that what good citizens wanted was "personal liberty without license," the whole assemblage arose and cheered. The band played the German hymn, "God of Our Nation." All the expenses of the reception were paid by the German Independence Committee.

PLAY HISGEN'S OWN MUSIC AT TEMPLE RALLY

At the big Independence League rally in Tremont Temple to-night, at which Thomas L. Hisgen, the presidential candidate, will speak, the band music will include "The Four Brothers" caprice, composed by Mr. Hisgen himself.

Benavente's Band will furnish music for the rally. "The Four Brothers" caprice, which will be played at some intermission between the evening's speeches, is named for the Four Brothers Oil Company, the famous business concern in which Mr. Hisgen is a partner, and which has bucked the Standard Oil Company so successfully.

The doors of Tremont Temple will be open at 7 o'clock. From 7 to 8 there will be a concert by the band. The program will include, as another compliment to the presidential candidate, the famous "Thomas L. Hisgen Waltz," composed by Thoma. The program follows:

March—"Independence League"	Benavente
Selection—"Merry Widow"	Leha
Cornet solo—"Cleopatra" Mr. Taffey G. Mauch.	Damar
Waltz—"Thomas L. Hisgen"	Thoma
Popular airs—"Harrigan," "Are You Sincere," "Summertime," "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," "Schooldays."
Saxophone solo Mr. J. Benavente.	Selected
Selection—"National Airs"	Benavente

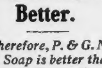
CZAR INVADES NORTH PERSIA

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The invasion of Northern Persia by Russian Cossacks is believed by the English Foreign Office to foreshadow the permanent occupancy of a part of the Azerbaijan Province by the Czar and to be a serious menace to the Balkan peace plans.

There is a less optimistic feeling here regarding the Balkan situation.

$75,000 LUMBER FIRE IN BANGOR

BANGOR, Oct. 26.—The largest sawmill of Lowell & Engell at East Hampden, two miles below this city, narrowly escaped destruction early to-day in a fire which swept the lumber yards, burning more than 2,000,000 feet of prepared pine boards, ready for the market, together with several small structures, with a total damage of about $75,000.



The Materials Are Better.

And, therefore, P. & G. Naphtha Soap is better than any other naphtha soap.

We are quite willing to tell you what P. & G. Naphtha Soap is made of.

Cocoanut oil is one ingredient. Tallow is another. Naphtha is a third. Caustic soda is a fourth.

Most soap manufacturers think that cocoanut oil is "too good" to be used in making a laundry soap.

Perhaps it is. But as there is nothing else that is "just as good", we use it. Cocoanut oil yields a remarkably profuse suds. It is a wonderful cleanser.

The naphtha in P. & G. Naphtha Soap is important. It loosens the dirt. The other ingredients cleanse.

HEARST'S SPEECH AT GERMAN RECEPTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Following is the speech delivered by William Randolph Hearst yesterday afternoon at the German-American reception in the Hotel Astor:

My Friends—I hardly expected to speak here to-day, as I realized that this gathering was more of a reception generously tendered our candidates than a political meeting. I thought, moreover, that there was probably an old blue law somewhere upon the statute books which provided some such penalty as a ducking in the Gowanus Canal for any offender who talked politics on Sunday.

I am very much opposed to these ridiculous old blue laws, but I could be brought to regard with favor a special law which would prevent me, after two months of steady political speaking, from talking any more politics on Sunday or any other day.

I am not here, therefore, to make a political address, but to express my appreciation of your kind reception and to say a few words in support of an idea in which you, as German-Americans, and we, as Independence party men, are alike interested—the idea of personal liberty.

I am heartily in sympathy with the plank in favor of personal liberty which appears in the Independence party platform. I am so heartily in favor of it that I will admit that Mr. Shearn and I prepared practically that plank and submitted it to the Platform Committee, and through them to the Independence Party Convention.

Our conventions are not bossed in any way. Our Independence party men are willing to consider suggestions from their leaders, but they accept them or reject them as they see fit.

Therefore, the unanimous adoption of the personal liberty plank by our convention means not only that Mr. Shearn and I and the Platform Committee were in favor of personal liberty, but that the whole Independence Party Convention was unanimously in favor of it.

My friends, I know that all citizens of German extraction are greatly interested in individual liberty but I do not consider individual liberty more of a foreign idea or so much a foreign idea as an American idea.

Our fathers fought to secure freedom of thought, freedom of speech and freedom of political and individual action as long as that action is not contrary to the general welfare or an encroachment upon the rights of our fellow citizens.

A party like the Independence party, which is based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of Independence, cannot well do otherwise than support the citizens' rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in all innocent and inoffensive ways.

To bring the campaign for personal liberty in which we are all interested to a successful and honorable issue we must positively prevent the association of legitimate personal liberty with extreme license or unrighteous excess of any kind.

It is a good thing to eat well, but it is a most injurious thing to eat to excess. It is a good thing to work actively, but it is a most harmful thing to work to excess, and as it is with the necessities and duties of this world so it is with the proper pleasures of the world. The pleasures which make our lives bright should be enjoyed in all legitimate ways, but not to the extent of license or excess.

I have fought against drunkenness personally and in my newspapers, and I will continue to do so as long as I have the power and the life. I have fought against racetrack gambling personally and in my newspapers, and I intend to continue to do so as long as such a vice exists.

I am certainly not opposed to healthful open-air sports. I simply do not see why those sports should be contaminated by gambling any more than the German sociable glass of beer should be poisoned by prussic acid.

The one great danger in legitimate personal liberty lies in linking it with unbridled license.

I urge that we do not take aboard the good ship "Personal Liberty" the Jonah of racetrack gambling, lest in the storm of popular disapproval which would surely follow the good ship go down and carry with it to destruction not only the particular evil of gambling, but all of our objects which are commendable and desirable as well.

GERMAN INFLUENCE LAUDED BY HISGEN

THOMAS L. HISGEN'S speech at the Hotel Astor yesterday follows:

My friends, I want to thank you for the kindly greeting you have extended to me on my return from a tour of the United States. I am deeply touched by the compliment the German-Americans of New York have paid me; also the compliment paid to the illustrious founder of the Independence party in tendering us this reception.

I have been making speeches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and I speak in English this afternoon rather than in German because I have had no time to prepare anything in the language of the Fatherland, and would not care to talk in German without preparation upon this occasion.

My father was born and raised in Germany. He was one of the independent figures of that land, and he came to this country along with other men whose names adorn the pages of our history, among them Carl Schurz and General Franz Sigel.

When I was a barefoot boy in the little town of Petersburg, Indiana, a German professor, wandering far from the classic shade of his old home, stopped with us, and remained some two years ago. He taught me to speak the German language and to play the violin, two of the most valuable accomplishments I possess.

Birth of Independence Spirit.

Mine has been a life of hard work and earnest struggle against overwhelming odds. As you may possibly know, my brother and I began in the axle grease business in a small way, and built it up until it attracted the attention of the Standard Oil Company, which is in the same business, and then we were forced to fight for our business life. Because of the fight which we made I was nominated for President of the United States by the Independence party.

I have spoken in nearly all the large cities of our country, and I have told the tragic story of our prolonged struggle against the most gigantic trust the world has ever seen. It was a fight for business, for independence, for industrial liberty. It was for the very same thing that my father and his illustrious associates left their homes, crossed the sea and came to America.

My friends, we are reaching the close of a most arduous campaign. I feel that through it, and through the fight for industrial freedom which has been made, I have done right as I have seen the right. I can fully appreciate the sentiments of that old German song, the favorite of Carl Schurz, in which he found solace after the cares of business were over, when he sat down at his piano, and sang.

Praises German Citizenship.

I am proud, my friends, of my German parentage and proud of the German people in this country. Their influence has been felt in the building of this country, and their influence has been for the good of the country.

The German citizens have proved good citizens. Their industry and their honesty are known from coast to coast. They deserve and should be granted the largest measure of personal liberty that is guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States. The German citizens throughout this land have proven themselves worthy of such liberty.

Because I have not been able to prepare something in German, I believe I could not close my brief address more fittingly than by reciting a little poem.

Mr. Hisgen closed his speech by reciting a German folk lore poem in German.

EXPERTS PUT OHIO IN LIST OF DOUBTFULS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—In to-day issue of the Press, the political situation in Ohio is treated impartially by the two writers sent by the paper into the most important State figuring in the campaign, one of them claiming it for Taft by a great majority, the other condoling with Mr. Taft because he will lose it. J. S. Henry declares the Republican nominee will win by 60,000; on the other hand, O. O. Stealey asserts that Mr. Bryan will carry the State.

In part Mr. Henry says:

"Ohio will cast her electoral vote for Taft and Sherman. This is the judgment of unprejudiced political observers in the final analysis of a very mixed situation. There are four prominent features in the campaign. These are the temperance questions, the defection of Foraker men, the labor vote and the colored vote."

Mr. Stealey says: "It is really too bad for the Republicans that Mr. Bryan has a cinch on his own State and that Mr. Taft will lose his. I do not think that there is a question of this. I find that the three elements which win political victories are at the side of the Democratic candidate, viz: The labor vote, the German vote and the dissatisfied among the colored men. In Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton and other large strongholds Mr. Bryan is largely the favorite. It would not surprise me in the least if Mr. Bryan received 40,000 more votes than Harmon, and the election of Harmon is conceded.

GLOUCESTER PILOT HELD FOR SHOOTING

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 26.—Captain Parker Robbins was held in $8,000 in the District Court to-day on the charge of assault with intent to kill Captain Frank F. Cooney of Rockport, who was shot on the schooner Mary E. Cooney in this port on Saturday.

FINED $25 FOR ASSAULT.

Timothy Callahan, nineteen years old, No. 50 Hancock street, Dorchester, was fined $25 in Dorchester District Court to-day on the complaint of Conductor Harvey Clinton of the Neponset trolley line, who said that Callahan "smashed him in the face" in an argument on the car.

RABBI SCORES MINISTER FOR TAFT BIGOTRY

Declaring that the dragging of religion into a presidential campaign was "pernicious, undemocratic, un-American and un-Christian," Rabbi Charles Fleischer denounced from the pulpit of Temple Israel, the Ohio minister who declared that he and hundreds of thousands of Christians would not vote for Taft because he is a Unitarian.

Rabbi Fleischer said:

"A Methodist minister in Ohio dares to announce that he will not vote for Mr. Taft merely because that portly, courtly gentleman is a Unitarian, and therefore not a Christian, since he denies the deity of Jesus. Likewise this champion of orthodoxy asserts that thousands of other ministers and hundreds of thousands of Christian laymen will vote and work for the defeat of Taft for the same reason. If these men achieve their bigoted purpose, it ought to mean the beginning of the end of this democratic republic, or of the mean, malicious type of miscalled Christianity that, with its militancy, threatens the integrity of America.

"The little minister in question disclaims the distinction of bigotry, and thinks he proves his liberalism by saying he would gladly vote for a Jew. And yet, if a Jew or Catholic were nominated for the presidency, I have no doubt on which side such zealots would be found."

WRIGHT WILL BE A CRIPPLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Orville Wright, aeroplanist, will be a cripple for life as the result of the accident to his airship at Fort Myer five weeks ago.

Wright, who is recovering at a hospital here, to-day demanded that his doctors measure the leg injured at the thigh in the Fall which killed his companion, Lieutenant Selfridge. The surgeon's measurement showed the limb to have shrunken more than a quarter of an inch. As a result Mr. Wright must walk with a limp through life. Otherwise the limb is healing rapidly, and the aeroplanist will be able to leave for his home in [illegible] within a few days.

LAURIER LOOKS FOR CANADIAN VICTORY TO-DAY

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 26.—The electors throughout Canada are to-day expressing their political preferences and on their verdict depends the fate of the Liberal government which, under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has been in office for twelve years.

The campaign has been hotly contested in all the provinces and is the last in which Premier Laurier will participate, according to his declaration at Montreal.

He told the directors that he desired to carry out to completion the Grand Trank Pacific Railroad, the transcontinental system now under construction, and appealed for another term of office in which to further develop the Northwest.

The Conservative party, of which the Hon. R. L. Borden of Halifax is the leader, while not opposing the construction of a second transcontinental line, has severely criticised the heavy bond guarantee which the government assumed and condemned what it terms the indefinite plans for the easterly terminal of the system.

WINS DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF HER BOY

Mrs. Edith F. Hamilton, a pretty young woman, employed as a bookeeper for a mailing company, was granted a decree nisi to-day by Judge Dana in the divorce court after she told how her husband, Edwin F., had deserted her years ago. She has been married ten years.

"We lived four years in Dorchester," said Mrs. Hamilton, "and in 1902 when I went to Duxbury to visit my parents I found on my return my husband was a changed man. He had sold the furniture in our apartments during my absence and we went to live in one furnished room in Roxbury. He used to go out every evening after supper and stay until from 1 to 5 in the morning.

"Finally he said he was tired of married life and wanted to be free."

Mrs. Hamilton was granted the custody of her nine-year-old son.

LYNN MAYOR SHOOK FIST IN TUTTLE'S FACE

Head of B. & M. Tells of Lively Scene; Grade Crossings to Be Removed.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 26.—President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad took preliminary steps to-day toward abolishing the notorious "death-trap" grade crossings in this city and, with this preparation to-day comes the news that former Mayor C. Neal Barney of this city "practically" shook his official fist in the august face of President Tuttle during an argument on this same question. That is the way the story was told by President Tuttle during a visit last week of Mayor Porter and members of the Board of Aldermen to his office.

Mayor Porter and the aldermanic delegation went to President Tuttle to ask him if something couldn't be done about Lynn crossings. President Tuttle seemed willing. He also said:

"Your 'Boy Mayor' (former Mayor Barney) come to me last year and practically shook his fist in my face and declared I had got to do something. I objected to his rather strenuous attitude, when we were not compelled to do his bidding or that of the members of Lynn city government. The place for complaints was with the Railroad Commissioners and not my office."

However, the present meeting between President Tuttle and the city delegation was harmonious. To-day General Superintendent Lee of the Boston & Maine and George M. Folger of the traffic department spent an hour in Central square, noting the number of trains, pedestrians and teams and other crossing data to report back to President Tuttle. It is expected that the abolition of the crossings will be hastened. Meanwhile the road will hire special policemen to guard the crossings.

SHOE-STRIKERS IN CHELSEA TO MEET TO-NIGHT

Some of the Leaders in Recent Lynn Trouble Among the Speakers.

The striking lasters and edgers of the G. A. Walton shoe factory, about 200, will have a mass meeting to-night in the Grand Army Hall, Chelsea square. Addresses will be made by Chelsea, Boston and Lynn labor officials, notably the leaders who carried the Lynn lasters' strike to a successful conclusion.

The Chelsea strikers are holding firm. Their demand is for an equalization of the wages paid by the Waltons in their Chelsea factory with those paid by the same firm in Lynn, which are about 25 per cent. higher.

The strike has been on for ten days, and has necessitated the shutting down of the factory and the enforced idleness of the 1,800 men and women who work there. The strikers say they can remain out all Winter if need be, and that they have plenty of money for strike benefits, although none have as yet been called for by any of the strikers. The local shopkeepers are anxious to see the trouble ended, as their receipts in many cases have been seriously diminished.

THREATENS TO SHOOT "STONERS"

HYDE PARK, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Ida Kepner, who lives with her father, John Krug, denied to-day that a note had been left on the doorsteps in which a threat to burn it down was made unless she made her home elsewhere. "It is true that some scoundrel has been stoning the house," she said. "They stoned it last Monday and father went out with his shotgun after them. They came back Friday and Saturday. But it is not true that any warning note was left. If they come back again father will shoot."

Nature's Choicest Food

The nitrogen that Nature has stored in beans makes them her choicest food. They are 84 per cent nutriment. Yet, see how little they cost.

On a certain soil in Michigan—rich in nitrogen—grows Nature's choicest food. There's where our beans are grown.

They run 23% nitrogenous—84% nutriment. In food value they exceed eggs.

Ten cents spent for these beans as we bake them buys more nutrition than 30 cents spent for meat.

But the beans of the past were hard to digest. They would ferment and form gas.

You thought them a heavy food. So you served them but once in a while.

The whole trouble lay in the baking.

In a home oven, most of the beans fail to get half enough heat. The particles are not separated. The digestive juices can't get to them.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees. And we bake in small parcels, so that fierce heat gets to every bean.

The result is, our beans are digestible. Their nutriment is all utilized. There is no fermentation, no gas.

Beans have been the strong man's food—the food for the out-door worker. We have made them fit for the weak as well—the ideal food for all.

And we have multiplied their goodness.

Home-baked beans were broken and mushy—crisped in the top and half baked in the middle.

We bake them all alike—bake them until they are mealy. Yet they are nutty because we leave them whole.

Not a bean is crisped; not a skin is broken. That is due to the fact that we bake in live steam.

Then we bake the tomato sauce in with the pork and beans. The result is that delicious blend.

And that sauce itself has a sparkling zest. We make it from whole, vine-ripened tomatoes.

We could buy common tomato sauce, ready-made, for exactly one-fifth what it costs to make ours. But it would be made from tomatoes picked green, or of scraps from a canning factory.

But that flavor—that richness—which you get in Van Camp's would be lacking. Ours would taste like the common baked beans.

Van Camp's BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE
PORK AND BEANS

Each can of Van Camp's means a ready-cooked meal. A delicious, nutritious meal—fresh and savory—to be served steaming hot in ten minutes.

It is too bad to spoil this ideal dish by a simple lack of facilities.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory baked.

And they must be baked in live steam to remain nutty, mealy and whole.

You can't bake in this way. After all your trouble, the dish that results cannot be compared with Van Camp's.

Please try them and see. Let your people decide which they like best. For you don't want the bother of baking beans if we can bake them better.

People don't tire of Van Camp's. You can serve them often—serve them in place of meat. They are better for you—far less expensive. Let them reduce your food bills.

Don't judge Van Camp's by the usual ready baked beans. We pay for our hand-picked Michigan beans from five to seven times what other beans would cost. We spend on our tomato sauce five times what common sauce would cost. Those facts make a great deal of difference.

Van Camp's are the beans that your people will like best, and they are cheap enough.

Three sizes: 10, 15 and 20 cents per can.

CHARLESTOWN MERCHANTS OUT FOR AUERBACH

Strongly Favor Independence Candidate for Congress, and Tell Why.

APPROVE STAND ON NAVY

Charlestown business men favor the election to Congress in the Ninth District of Julius T. Auerbach, Independence League candidate. They believe his stand in favor of a greater navy is one which should commend itself to every Charlestown citizen.

A big navy would result in making the Charlestown Navy Yard one of the greatest in the world, giving employment to a great number of skilled mechanics, making good pay, resulting in increased business and prosperity for the district.

They are opposed to Mr. Kelliher, who is running for re-election, because he is opposed to a big navy, which they consider a blow at the industries of the district which he asks to return him to Congress.

Otto B. Armstrong, a clothing manufacturer, at No. 138 Chelsea street, Charlestown, is opposed to Keliher because of the Congressman's opposition to a larger navy. Mr. Armstrong says:

I am in favor of Mr. Auerbach's candidacy because I admire the man for his work in behalf of the people, and particularly his work for 80-cent gas in Boston. It has been a boon to the poor people. I am strongly against Mr. Kelliher because of his vote against a larger navy. I believe that Mr. Auerbach is sincere and when he says he is in favor of a larger navy I believe that he will do all he can to secure a larger navy. A larger navy would increase business 1,000 per cent in Charlestown. Mr. Kelliher has lost lots of friends and will lose many votes, too, on account of his opposition to a larger navy. Kelliher will also lose the votes of all honest men on account of his stand on the pure food laws.

Harry Miller, shoe merchant, at No. 117 Chelsea street, Charlestown, says Keliher cannot expect Charlestown's support. He says:

The Charlestown Navy Yard should never be allowed to go through another such period of slackness as it has been through. Hundreds of men ought to be employed there all the time, as they would if we had the larger navy that we ought to have had during the last session of Congress. These men, ranging from unskilled laborers to skilled mechanics, would immensely benefit business in Charlestown. Mr. Kelliher has voted against the larger navy and the betterment of business conditions in Charlestown. He can't expect the support of business men for that reason. I shall vote for Mr. Auerbach because he stands for what the people in this district want. I admire the man for his work in the 80-cent gas fight. Kelliher has made no fight like that, instead, he was on the wrong side of a good measure like the pure food bill. I shall vote for Auerbach.

Charles A. Simonds, dealer in provisions and ship stores, at No. 80 Chelsea street, Charlestown, says:

I favor Auerbach. Keliher can't expect to get the votes of the business men in Charlestown after his stand on the larger navy proposition. A larger navy would mean everything to people in Charlestown. Keliner was wrong again when he voted aginst the pure food bill. Auerbach is all right. He has shown that he was sincere in his fight for 80-cent gas for the people of Boston. People here know what slack times at the navy yard means for business. They've just been through such a time. A larger navy would alter this boom business for us. I'm going to vote for Auerbach.

ADNOIDS MADE YOUTH A "BAD BOY"

Doctor Finds Nasal Growth Pressed on Brain and Caused Vicious Outbreaks.

Special to the Boston American.

WAKEFIELD, Oct. 26.—A new and startling theory as to a possible cause of juvenile incorrigibility has been advanced in the case of Albert Borden, the sixteen-year-old lad who has gained something of a reputation as Greenwood's "bad boy." His pranks, usually more annoying than vicious, have recently developed into serious affairs. Sunday he drove his foster mother out of the house and bombarded it with stones, smashing the windows. He fled to the fields when his father answered his mother's screams for help.

The lad was arrested, and when taken to the station house Dr. Sopher was called in. He made an examination, and declared that the boy was a victim of an acute and distressing case of adenoids which had choked up the nasal passages and were pressing on his brain. He said that an operation would remove the pressure and that he boy would unquestionably be cured of what had been supposed to be vicious tendencies. In every other respect the lad is entirely normal, with a fine physique and well-formed head. Prior to his recent outbreaks he had a good disposition, and was very apt to learn. If Dr. Sopher's theory is borne out by the developments after the operation, which will be made this week, the case will establish an instructive precedent to the officials of corrective institutions for children. Surgical operations for bone pressures, which have been disastrous morally to certain types of children, have not been uncommon, but the adenoid theory is so far as is known a novel one.

The operation for the removal of adenoids is a minor one in surgery and is made almost daily by some physicians. Usually it is to relieve the air passages from congestion and make nasal breathing possible instead of through the mouth.

In the District Court to-day Judge Charles M. Bruce said there was nothing for him to do but to hold the boy in $500 bail until next Wednesday. By that time the lad will have been relieved. He is temporarily detained in the East Cambridge jail.

PASTOR LAUDS MRS. HUNTING FOR CHARITY

Denials that Mrs. Lavinia Hunting of Malden, whose will, giving all but $3,700 of her $60,000 estate to charity, is being contested on the ground of unsound mind and undue influence, was frequently engaged in "fervent prayer," that she was fond of singing hymns and that she used liquor plentifully were given before Judge Lawton in the Probate Court at East Cambridge to-day.

The case came up on a continued hearing. Rev. Dr. E. C. Applegarth, pastor of the Maplewood Baptist Church, told of Mrs. Hunting's charity. He said that when he solicited a donation from her for a repair fund for the church she told him she would give $100, but later made her actual subscription $260. For a no-license rally she gave $10 and for a big revival meeting $50.

Cross-examined by Attorney Charles W. Bartlett, Rev. Mr. Applegarth said that in seven years and three months Mrs. Hunting had given a total of $868, which included $55 for a foreign mission and $525 for repairs, etc.

HIBBARD CUTS OFF LUNCHEON

Mayor Hibbard announced to-day that the lunch that has heretofore been furnished on election nights to the City Hall clerks who stay late and receive the returns fro mthe wards and precincts and tabulate them will be dispensed with this year. Usually a force of about thirty clerks is engaged, and it has been the custom to give a lunch in the anteroom of the Common Council chamber. Last year, according to report, about fifty "clerks" were fed, and the bill for the "lunch" was $140.

TRIO HITS HUB AFTER STORMY WORLD TOUR

One Is Made Chief of Tribe in Egypt, but Loses Job When "Broke."

ANOTHER IN SHIPWRECK

Three young Americans who had fallen victims to the wanderlust and had thereupon essayed a world-girdling trip got into Boston on their way home to-day.

Tufick Ahmed, twenty years old, son of his father of the same name, once subject of the Khedive of Egypt, was first to arrive. He came in on the British tramp steamer Oriana. Besides Tufick and his troubles she carried 6,000 tons of sugar from Singapore.

"When I get out to my home in Joliet, Illinois," said Tufick, "you kin bet I'm done with this here thing of tripping around the world." "I got a fool idea that I'd hike over to Egypt and see my pa's country and his folks. You know he wasn't no older nor me when he came to Joliet. Well I was the biggest thing ever when I landed with about $200 and they'd 'a made me chief of the tribe of somethin' until they found out my money was gone. Then they kicked me out.

"I got stranded in Port Said when the Oriana blew into port. I begged that captain for three whole days to take me back to Boston."

Malcolm Smith of Philadelphia and Charles Strong of Paducah, Florida, were the others who are mighty glad to hit Boston. They came in on the Leyland steamer Anglican from London. Last December Smith took a notion he would travel a bit and shipped out of Philadelphia on the tramp New Orleans, a Britisher. He had fair luck until a typhoon landed the New Orleans on the East coast of Borneo. He had money enough to pay his way to Singapore. He thought the American consul would send him home.

"No proof that you are an American," he said to Smith, "even if you did come from Philadelphia."

Smith hung around the docks of Singapore begging ship after ship to take him, but they had use only for Malays and Chinamen. One day he met Strong. The latter had shipped out of New York on the British tramp steamer Springburn, and had fallen from her bridge to the dock while laying in Singapore. He had just come out of the hospital and the American consul had refused to aid him. Both then appealed to the British consul because the ships they had sailed on were under the British flag. He sent them to London and home.

"Never again for me," said Smith.

"I've had enough. I wouldn't change Paducah for London," said Strong.

MAN AND BOY HID IN STORE; HELD BY COURT

A pile of potato bags, which Patrolman Dennis Neylon kicked as he was searching the store of Edward McGregor, No. 29 Shawmut street, Somerville, speedily resolved itself into a human fighting machine, and the policeman had a hard tussle on his hands before he subdued and handcuffed a man who had been lying hidden under them. The officer also brought to light a fifteen-year-old boy, stowed away under a counter.

On the way to the station, the boy, who said he was Charles McKenna of No. 164 Washington street, Somerville, slipped the handcuffs and got away. He was recaptured and held in $200 bonds. The man, who said he was Edward A. Brown, aged twenty-three, no home, was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

TAX MEN MAY WORK SUNDAYS

The petition of Captain Edward Gaskin and officers of police station 2 for a summons for the arrest of a city assessor on the charge of working on Sunday, was denied to-day in the decision handed down by Judge Duff of the Municipal Court, who holds that the work was a necessity.

Two weeks ago twenty-five assistants in the assessors' office was stopped from working on Sunday.

Judge Duff states: "If the assessors must work seven days a week to fulfill their duties imposed by law it must be assumed that the Legislature in imposing those duties recognized such work as a public necessity and justifiable."

MAYOR HIBBARD TO ADDRESS THE SCOTS

Mayor Hibbard is expected to deliver the address of greeting at the annual Hallowe'en concert and ball of the Clan Mackenzie, Thursday night, at Odd Fellows' Hall. Alexander MacGregor, president of the Scots' Charitable Society, and Peter Kerr of the Order of Scottish Clans will also speak.

THIEVES RANSACK HOME OF PASTOR

The home of Rev. Ernest L. Mills at No. 548 Broadway, South Boston, was ransacked by thieves last night while the pastor was called out on a sick call. The pastor's wedding presents, amounting to about $225 worth of silverware, a lady's gold watch and about $40 in cash were taken by the thieves.

GOMPERS OUT WITH REPLY TO ROOSEVELT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Claiming the right to reply to President Roosevelt's recent letter to Senator Knox, in which the President called upon Mr. Bryan to specifically indorse Mr. Gompers's interpretation of the anti-injunction plank of the Democratic platform, Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, to-day made his reply, from which the following are quotations:

"President Roosevelt makes a direct and specific attack on labor.

"The pretence that the attack is upon me is too thinly veiled to deceive any one. He strikes over my shoulder at the hearts of the great rank and file of the workers and other liberty-loving citizens of our country. So far as I am concerned, I have neither the inclination nor the desire to bask in the sunlight of President Roosevelt's benevolent assimilation by which he placates some by the big stick, browbeats others and by his sophistry hopes to fool the masses into supporting injunction judge Taft.

Attack on President.

"If the courts have not invaded human liberty, if they have not undertaken to protect corporate interests to the detriment of the people, why did President Roosevelt characterize Judge Grosscup's reversal of the $29,000,000 fine imposed by Judge Landis upon the Standard Oil Trust as a 'gross miscarriage of justice'?

"Why did he, in his special message to Congress January 31, 1908, say:

"'It is all wrong to use the injunction to prevent the entirely and legitimate actions of labor organizations in their struggle for industrial betterment, or under the guise of protecting property rights unwarrantedly to invade the fundamental rights of the individual. It is futile to concede, as we all do, the right and the necessity of organized effort on the part of wage earners and yet by injunction process to forbid peaceable action to accomplish the lawful objects, for which they are organized and upon which their success depends.'

"Indignation Will Grow."

And further: 'If some way of remedying the abuses is not found, the feeling of indignation against them among large numbers of our citizens will tend to grow so extreme as to produce a revolt against the whole use of the process of injunction.'

"In the same message he says he 'considers it most unwise to abolish the use of the process of injunctions.'"

"The wildest type of a layman, much less one familiar with the injunction process, in his wildest dreams never suggested the abolition of the injunction process. It is not its abolition that labor desires, but the restoration to its beneficent use from which it has been ruthlessly diverted; from the protection of property rights to the invasion of personal freedom.

"I write this to show the utter confusion of the entire matter of injunctions in Mr. Roosevelt's mind. In the one message he states a fundamental principle, then makes an absurd deduction, and in his attack on me goes back on it all."

"Vilify Labor Movement."

"It is the purpose of the opponents of labor," said Gompers, "to vilify the labor movement through me, and Mr. Roosevelt now joins the chorus upon the pretext that I have attacked the Federal courts. As a man and as a citizen, I have nothing to retract; but I insist that despite great provocation I have always expressed my views and criticisms—perhaps in strong, yet respectful language. If any one desires to look for criticism and arraignment of the Supreme Court of the United States let him read the dissenting opinion of Justice Harlan in the Barry Baldwin vs. Robert Robertson case. Let him read the opinions of the four dissenting justices when the Supreme Court declared the law limiting the hours of bakers in the State of New York to ten unconstitutional; let him read the four dissenting opinions of the Supreme Court's decision when the five justices declared the income tax unconstitutional. No severer indictments were ever expressed by any citizen of our country against the invasion of the people's rights and liberties."

In conclusion Mr. Gompers says:

"Desperate and Angry."

"The fact of the matter is that President Roosevelt, having made Injunction Judge Taft the candidate of the Republican party for President, and seeing that the "Labor vote," which so often has been corralled, diverted and perverted by the politicians, is now aroused and determined to deliver its own vote; that the toilers will not be cajoled, deceived or brow-beaten, has become desperate and angry, and in his anger, by the worst exhibition of demagogy, has tried to instill into the employers and business men the fear that their property and business are in danger. It is an exhibition of impotent rage and disappointment and an awful descent from the dignity of the high office of President of the United States. No one but himself will be deceived as to the purpose of Mr. Roosevelt."

2 DEAD AFTER PISTOL DUEL IN CIRCUS RING

OFFICER AND COWBOY SHOOT EACH OTHER TO DEATH; MOB THREATENS SHOWMEN.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 26.—Police Captain Lee Varnado and Lon Seely, a circus cowboy with Miller Brothers' "101 Ranch" Wild West show, fought a duel with pistols in the circus ring at Gulfport, Miss., late last night and shot each other to death. Only the arrival of deputies and constabulary from other cities prevented a mob of Gulfport citizens from slaying the rest of the show people with guns and knives when they sought to leave the city this morning.

Owing to the excitement still prevailing, it is as yet impossible to learn exactly what precipitated the tragedy, but according to most accounts the showmen themselves were to blame.

The "101 Ranch" outfit, which is touring the South after showing for the Summer at New York resorts and other northern points, rumbled into Gulfport with forty cowboys, girls, wild horses and a big outfit.

All Gulfport turned out to see the circus and most of Gulfport stayed around to see the outfit pull down its tents and start for New Orleans. During the process of getting away a quarrel arose among the cowboys and tentmen who were pulling up the stakes.

A free fight of the show people was imminent when Policeman Varnado rushed into the ring and caught a club with which Cowboy Seely was about to fell a tentman. "I'll kill you for that," yelled Seely. "Pull your gun and we'll fight it out now."

Varnado drew his revolver, and both men stepped back, so that each stood upon an edge of the circus ring. They fired simultaneously, and both bullets found their mark. The cowboy's shot went through Varnado's mouth into his brain, and he dropped dead.

At the same instant the lead from the policeman's gun passed through the cowboy's eye and Seely fell upon his face. He was dead when the showmen and spectators

MARRIAGE ENDS COURTSHIP OF FORTY YEARS

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 26.—Lynn smiled and offered congratulations to-day to Henry M. Lewis when he timidly admitted that he had concluded his forty years' courtship and made Miss Emeline Parrott his wife.

They are both sixty-two years of age and their friends declare it may be truthfully said it is a case of "sixty-two years young," since their ancestors, as far back as anybody can recall, lived beyond the century mark.

"What was the use o' gettin' married sooner?" said Mr. Lewis. "We got nigh on fifty years yet to live, and that's long enough for mos' folk."

"I was always independent," said Mrs. Lewis. "I worked for C. H. Aborn's shoe factory ever since I was a girl. I was independent, and saw no need of gettin' married. Henry asked me often enough, goodness knows, but I said no. I was comfortably fixed, and before we knew it we'd been goin' together forty years."

Last week Henry popped the question "for nigh on a hundred times" as he reckoned to-day, and to his great surprise Miss Parrott smiled and said yes. She had left the shoe factory only a few weeks ago and finding time hanging rather heavy on her hands thought better of his oft-reiterated proposal. The Rev. Burton A. Lucas of the Chestnut Congregational Church performed the ceremony. It was a very quiet affair and both agreed to say nothing about it.

Mrs. Lewis inherited the home at No. 15 Garland street from her parents. She and her husband will live there the rest of their lives. He is employed as a private policeman by some of the property owners in Monroe street and together they are said to have a very tidy sum to their credit in the Lynn savings banks.

FROTHINGHAM'S DOG LED PARTY TO DEAD BODY

Nathaniel L. Frothingham, a prominent Boston lawyer, was found dead in the woods about half a mile from his Summer home at Rye Beach, N. H., yesterday, the barking of his setter leading a searching party to the body.

Mr. Frothingham, who was an enthusiastic sportsman and expert hunter, generally remained at his lodge through October for the hunting. Saturday afternoon he left for a gunning trip, accompanied by his dog.

He did not return and all night long a party tramped through the woods and underbrush and along the shore. Finally about daybreak the members heard the mournful barking of a dog, which led them to a large rock. Mr. Frothingham was found sitting upright upon this rock with his gun by his side and his faithful dog beside him.

Dr. A. G. Lance, the coroner and medical referee for this district, later made an examination of the body and decided that death was due to heart failure.

The searching party had considerable difficulty in removing the body from where it was found in the midst of a dense thicket. They were obliged to cut away a great deal of the brush wood. In Mr. Frothingham's game bag there were two partridges and two other birds which he had evidently shot before being taken ill.

He had offices at No. 53 State street, and during the Winter lived at the Hotel Somerest. He is survived by a wife and stepdaughter, Marion Brooks Frothingham. He came of an old and respected Massachusetts family, was a graduate of Harvard University and the Harvard Law School.

Mr. Frothingham was fifty years old and a cousin of Louis A. Frothingham, Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham.

OFFER REWARD FOR ATHOL MAN

ATHOL, Oct. 26.—Spurred on by the offer of a reward of $100, hundreds of men and boys have again taken up the search for aged William P. Stowers, who disappeared from the home of his niece, Mrs. James Bisbee, Highland avenue, on October 12.

The absence of the old man has nearly prostrated Mrs. Bisbee, and Mr. Bisbee decided to offer $100 for any information leading to his discovery, dead or alive.

Not even the slightest trace has been discovered of Mr. Stowers, who is seventy-three years old.

ATHLETES TO MEET.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, to-night to arrange the details for the first annual cross-country run of the association. The report of the manager of the annual games will be read.

Double Legal Stamps will be given with every purchase mornings until 12 o'clock noon at Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner Hanover and Portland streets. Single stamps thereafter.

FOOTBALL WAR FLAG STOLEN

Somerville High School not only lost its annual football game with Waltham High Saturday afternoon, but the large banner carried by Somerville "rooters" the past five years at all games, was stolen.

Following the game the Somerville students tried to hoist their flag on the Waltham High School pole. They were prevented, but when the Somerville crowd boarded the train three young men accompanied them.

The man carrying the flag suspected he was being followed and gave it to a boy to carry, but the youngster "lost" it.

A reward of $5 has been offered for the return of the banner.

COURT OFFICER HUDSON STRICKEN

Edward W. Hudson, chief court officer of the Boston Municipal Court, where he has been engaged the past twenty-five years, and a Civil War veteran, suffered a severe shock while waiting for a train at the Orient Heights station of the Revere Beach & Lynn railroad to-day. He was removed to the Metcalf Hospital, where his condition is said to be serious. Mr. Hudson also has a son employed in the Municipal Court.

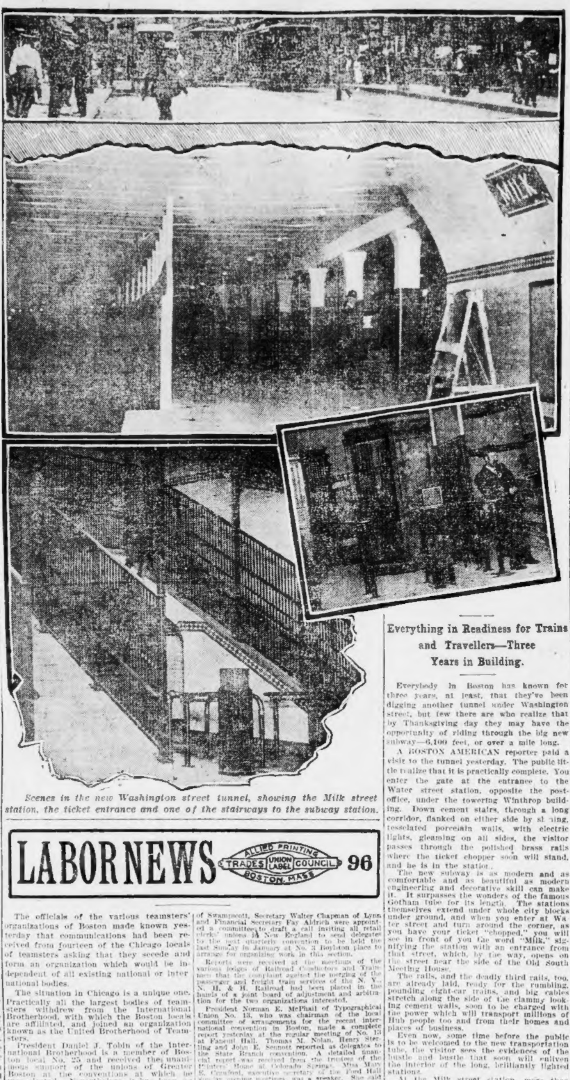
Washington Street Tunnel Complete, May be Open for Traffic Thanksgiving



Scenes in the new Washington street tunnel, showing the Milk street station, the ticket entrance and one of the stairways to the subway station.

Everything in Readiness for Trains and Travellers—Three Years in Building.

Everybody in Boston has known for three years, at least, that they've been digging another tunnel under Washington street, but few there are who realize that by Thanksgiving day they may have the opportunity of riding through the big new subway—6,100 feet, or over a mile long.

A BOSTON AMERICAN reporter paid a visit to the tunnel yesterday. The public little realize that it is practically complete. You enter the gate at the entrance to the Water street station, opposite the post-office, under the towering Winthrop building. Down cement stairs, through a long corridor, flanked on either side by shining, tesselated porcelain walls, with electric lights, gleaming on all sides, the visitor passes through the polished brass rails where the ticket chopper soon will stand, and he is in the station.

The new subway is as modern and as comfortable and as beautiful as modern engineering and decorative skill can make it. It surpasses the wonders of the famous Gotham tube for its length. The stations themselves extend under whole city blocks under ground, and when you enter at Water street and turn around the corner, as you have your ticket "chopped," you will see in front of you the word "Milk," signifying the station with an entrance from that street, which, by the way, opens on the street near the side of the Old South Meeting House.

The rails, and the deadly third rails, too, are already laid, ready for the rumbling, pounding eight-car trains, and big cables stretch along the side of the clammy looking cement walls, soon to be charged with the power which will transport millions of Hub people too and from their homes and places of business.

Even now, some time before the public is to be welcomed to the new transportation tube, the visitor sees the evidences of the hustle and bustle that soon will enliven the interior of the long, brilliantly lighted stations.

At the Milk street station, more than 350 feet long, Saturday night a score of laborers were busy in putting the finishing touches to the work.

The new tunnel extends from a point opposite Common street, back of Washington to Haymarket square, where it connects with the old subway. Trains emerge at the southern and rise gradually on an incline to meet the "L" trains at the junction of the raised structures near the Columbia Theatre, just north of the Dover street station.

The entrances are very frequent and it is conceded that with so many stations in the heart of the shopping district—the route is under Washington street practically the whole distance—a great step will have been taken in relieving traffic congestion.

These entrances are at the following places: Lagrange street, Essex, Hayward place, Temple place, Winter street, Summer, Franklin, Milk, Water, State street, Adams square and Haymarket square.

The provision for ventilation in the Boston subway are as nearly perfect as engineering skill can devise for an "underground."

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

The officials of the various teamsters' organizations of Boston made known yesterday that communications had been received from fourteen of the Chicago locals of teamsters asking that they secede and form an organization which would be independent of all existing national or international bodies.

The situation in Chicago is a unique one. Practically all the largest bodies of teamsters withdrew from the International Brotherhood, with which the Boston locals are affiliated, and joined an organization known as the United Brotherhood of Teamsters.

President Daniel J. Tobin of the International Brotherhood is a member of Boston local No. 25 and received the unanimous support of the unions of Greater Boston at the conventions at which he was elected. Nevertheless, it has been no secret that there was an alleged dissatisfaction among the locals and some friction between them and the International.

The subject of the telegrams from Chicago was the cause of a conference yesterday between the officials of some of the locals, but nothing of an official nature took place.

LABOR NOTES.

The semi-annual convention of Sheet Metal Workers was held yesterday at Worcester, delegates from Boston, Providence, Marlboro, Quincy, Lynn, Brockton, Worcester, Stamford, Ct., South Norwalk, Ct., and Hartford, Ct., being present. The Worcester local entertained the delegates at a banquet. President Charles A. Cullen of the Worcester C. L. U., International Organizer William Barry, President G. B. Bradford of the New England District Council and Secretary W. H. Partridge were the principal speakers. It was voted to put a special organizer in the field for two months to form new locals.

Three of the largest theatres have already signed the new schedule with Theatrical Stage Employes No. 11, and it is expected that all the other local houses will sign this week. The relations between the management of all the union theatres in Boston and No. 11 are harmonious. No material changes have been made in the new agreement, which will take the place of the five-year contract which expires next Monday. The executive board will take charge of the plans for the theatre for the coming benefit to Frank K. Foster, and the local will make a donation. A message was received from International President John J. Barry, a member of No. 11, who is now in Philadelphia in the interests of the organization.

A. W. Daniels reported at yesterday's meeting of Coal Hoisting Engineers No. 74 as delegate to the State Branch convention of the A. F. of L. [illegible] committees were appointed to arrange for educational talks, the annual smoke talk and social, and for the anniversary ball.

Bartenders No. 77 received the report of its delegates to the State Branch convention of the A. F. of L.

Teamsters No. 25 held their first meeting in [illegible] Hall. The trustees reported. It was announced that the initiation fee and reinstatement fee for members would be $1 until January 1.

International Vice-President William J. Dougherty of Buffalo, N. Y., of the Blacksmiths' Union, yesterday spoke before the members of Boston Local No. 200. He said that he would remain in this locality a month longer.

Edward J. Ryan and James J. McNally of No. 200 and John Berry of No. 344 will represent journeymen and helpers at the meeting next Tuesday night at Wells Memorial to form a Metal Trades Section of the Boston C. L. U.

The State Executive Board of Steam Engineers yesterday met to further consider the plans for the State convention to be held at Lowell, Sunday, December 13. A joint committee meeting will be held to-morrow night at No. 514 Tremont street.

Retail Clerks' Union held its quarterly convention at No. 3 Boylston place yesterday, delegates from Boston, Brockton, Lynn, Malden and Swampscott being present. President Charles E. Coburn of Swampscott, Secretary Walter Chapman of Lynn and Financial Secretary Fay Aldrich were appointed a committee to draft a call inviting all retail clerks' unions in New England to send delegates to the next quarterly convention to be held the last Sunday in January at No. 3 Boylston place to arrange for organizing work in this section.

Reports were received at the meetings of the various lodges of Railroad Conductors and Trainmen that the complaint against the merging of the passenger and freight train services of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad had been placed in the hands of a joint board of adjustment and arbitration for the two organizations interested.

President Norman E. McPhail of Typographical Union No. 13, who was chairman of the local committee of arrangements for the recent international convention in Boston, made a complete report yesterday at the regular meeting of No. 13 at Faneuil Hall. Thomas M. Nolan, Henry Sterling and John E. Sennott reported as delegates to the State Branch convention. A detailed financial report was received from the trustees of the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs. Miss Mary E. Crawford, executive secretary of the Ford Hall Sunday evening meetings, was a speaker. She said the purposes of the Ford Hall meetings were similar to those of the Cooper Union in New York, and were open to all. An executive session on a local trade matter was held, and the executive board will confer regarding it this week.

JUDGE FALLON'S SON DEAD.

Joseph D. Fallon, Jr., son of the judge of the South Boston Court, is dead at his home, No. 789 East Broadway. He was a lawyer and was a partner with his father. He was born in the peninsular district, and had always resided there. Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Miss Euphemia M., Miss Catherine M. and Josephine S.

FOUR OFFICERS RESCUE 10 IN TENEMENT FIRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Bravery of four Bath Beach policemen early to-day saved the lives of ten persons in a fire, which destroyed the three-story tenement at No. 1,832 Bath avenue. Lieutenant James Fogarty led the rescuers into the burning building, and when escape was cut off by the stairs, he, with Sergeant Fred Kavanaugh and Policemen John McGrath and Joseph Coffey, carried the families of Jacob Levy and Joseph Lukatsky to the roof. They were passed to safety on an adjoining building.

Joseph Mezarra was stricken by apoplexy during the excitement and fell, fracturing his skull. He is dying. Joseph Kellar, his wife and four children were saved.

HISGEN MAKES THREE HUB SPEECHES TO-NIGHT

INDEPENDENCE NOMINEE AT FANEUIL HALL, DUDLEY OPERA HOUSE, TREMONT TEMPLE.

Thomas L. Hisgen of West Springfield, candidate of the Independence party for President, will speak at three different rallies in Boston to-night.

He will speak in Tremont Temple, in the Dudley Street Opera House and in historic old Faneuil Hall, thus giving opportunity to thousands to hear him discuss national issues. A splendid musical program by Benavente's Band will enhance the Tremont Temple rally for the hour previous to the speaking. As a tribute to Mr. Hisgen the band will include in its selections of the evening the famous "Four Brothers" caprice, composed by Mr. Hisgen himself.

The other speakers will include Hon. William N. Osgood, candidate for Governor, and Robert J. McCartney, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

The Faneuil Hall rally is particularly for Mr. Auerbach's candidacy, and it is expected that some new and illuminating facts regarding the career of Congressman John A. Keliher will be forthcoming.

Mr. Hisgen is back at his home in West Springfield to-day after his two-months' triumphant tour of the country from ocean to ocean. He will come to Boston for to-night's rallies, accompanied by Mrs. Hisgen. To-night will be the first opportunity Mrs. Hisgen has had to hear her husband speak on his presidential campaign tour. Naturally, she is vitally interested in her husband's campaign, though she has deplored the necessity of his being away from home for the past two months.

Mr. Hisgen spoke in New York yesterday before a large gathering of German voters at the Hotel Astor. He was heartily greeted and received earnest attention throughout his discussion of national issues.

In his national tour Mr. Hisgen has travelled thousands of miles and has addressed thousands and thousands of people in nearly all the big cities of all the States. His tour has been most gratifying from a campaign standpoint. Mr. Hisgen has borne the physical stress very well and comes to Boston in good speaking form.

MELLEN PUTS SOFT PEDAL ON STATE MUSIC

He Wants to Buy Another Trolley Line, So Commissioners Publish a Most Silent 'Ad.'

"I will roar you as gentle as any sucking dove; I will roar you, an't were any nightingale."

Bottom, the Weaver in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," promised he would make a most ladylike roar if they would only let him play the role of the lion. But they mistrusted Bottom's ability to roar gently.

For all ladylike roaring, however, for ability to make a racket quietly and to advertise without disturbing anything, the Massachusetts Railroad Commission has the call.

Witness it's gentle advertisement announcing that a public hearing would be held next Wednesday at 10:30 a. m., regarding the proposed purchase of the Bennington & North Adams Street Railway by the Berkshire Street Railway Company, which is owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

The Railroad Commissioners have been asked by the Legislature to "consider the expediency" of this purchase and to report on it to the next General Court.

Did You See the Ad?

The whole purchase proposition has been labelled a plain "grab" on the part of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad by people alive to the inner meaning of such transactions.

However, it is necessary for the Railroad Commissioners to give a public hearing on the questions.

If the hearing was loudly proclaimed a lot of people might notice it, attend the hearing and kick up a fuss highly undesirable in the eyes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

The minds of railroad commissions move mysteriously their wonders to perform, and the commission, in advertising this hearing, as required by law, proceeded to do so in an innocuous and unobtrusive manner, such as a sensible man would employ if he was about to commit a felony.

The Commission sent an advertising notice to one paper, the Boston Transcript. This notice was printed on October 15 in agate tye, the smallest type possible for the occasion, and was deftly buried in an inside page at the bottom of a column.

Perhaps This'll Help Some.

As a notice, paid for by the State moneys to call public attention to a matter of public interest, it was the most inconspicuous advertisement that it could be and come within the law at all.

Talk about Bottom the Weaver's earnest pledge to "roar gently." The best that Bottom got in the Shakespearian comedy was to wear the head of an ass.

But if the clowns in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" had only known of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission and its ability to make a silent noise, they would have cast them for the lion's part with joyful glee.

When is an ad. not an ad.?

Ans.—When Mellen is on the soft pedal.

Note—The BOSTON AMERICAN allows Mellen and the Commission the benefit of this publicity without the usual space rates.

GOT LICENSE THEN ASKED GIRL TO WED

After a courtship of four years, Eugene Goodrick, general electrician of the Lew Fields Company, yesterday led to the altar Miss Gunhild Carlson, known professionally as Daisy Carlson, a dancer in the same company. Daisy was a willing bride, but she won't know until she reads this that Mr. Goodrick secured his marriage license on Friday, just one day before he proposed and was accepted. Of course, Mr. Goodrick had made other proposals of marriage, but Miss Carlson had never made up her mind to say "Yes."

Finally the electrician decided that the courtship had continued long enough. So on Friday he secured his license, told some of his friends he was to be married on Sunday and then approached Daisy. It took him about ten minutes to convince her that Sunday was the day. She gave in, said Sunday would suit her and the electrician and the dancer were made one by Rev. Dr. Charles C. Earle, pastor of the Ruggles Street Baptist Church. The ceremony was witnessed by some of the theatrical friends of the bride and bridegroom. Miss Carlson was attended by Miss Frances Harris and Mrs. Victor Jerome. The best man was Charles Judels.

MANGLED BY CAR; BEGGED FOR DEATH

"Shoot Me," Pleaded Dying Lad, Crushed Beneath Fall River Trolley.

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 26.—The sufferings of thirteen-year-old Howard Dring, the lad who was crushed under a Globe Village trolley and who begged the police to shoot him as he lay pinned under the "life-beam" of the car, have been mercifully terminated by death. The boy passed away in Union Hospital in spite of the doctors' efforts.

Howard was on his way to meet his mother, Mrs. Dora Dring, when he was struck by the car. Motorman Thomas Bagley was unable to stop in time.

"It seemed as though I saw just a shadow," says Bagley, "and the next instant I heard a shriek."

The boy rolled under the fender, one of the kind that Judge McDonough of Fall River District Court has characterised as ineffective, and then was crushed by the life-guard beam. When the car was stopped and men hurried to look underneath they found the boy mangled under the forward truck.

All through the forty-five minutes which dragged by till the car was lifted, Howard was conscious.

"Get me out. Oh! please get me out," he sobbed. His cries unnerved men who were trying to lift up the car. Women wept and were made sick by the thought of the lad's agony.

The pain was more than the boy could endure. He spied the brass buttons and uniform of a policeman in the crowd.

"Please shoot me," he begged.

BREAK GROUND FOR NEW HEBREW HOME

The breaking of the ground on the site of which will stand the new home for destitute Jewish children, took place yesterday at the corner of Canterbury and Austin streets, West Roxbury. The ground-breaking was attended by nearly 2,000 people, and the following noted rabbis addressed the assembly: Solomon Schindler, Charles Fleischer and M. Eichler, Charles H. Hertz, chairman of the board of trustees, also spoke.

ONE THING AT A TIME

KELIHER'S VOTE FOR POISONED FOOD

There are several reasons why Mr. Keliher should not be elected to Congress from the Ninth District for the fourth term. The American will deal with these reasons ONE AT A TIME.

There are no sympathetic features in Mr. Keliher's candidacy which should mitigate the severity of the condemnation of the citizens of the Ninth District for the misrepresentation he has given them in Congress.

Mr. Keliher has held his seat for three terms already and is asking the district to give him still another term.

Not in many years has the Ninth District granted a man four terms in Congress. The salary is large and the office is honorable and the people believe that one man should not enjoy it too long to the exclusion of other better men, or men at least as good.

To refuse him another re-election would not be blighting prematurely a privilege which he had scarcely begun to enjoy.

Nor is Mr. Keliher entitled to any sympathy because HE HAS NO OTHER VISIBLE MEANS OF SUPPORT than the large salary attached to his present office. He is a man of some ability, of good health and in the best years of his life. If such a man needs support it certainly should not be in Congress. Congress is the last place where sympathy should put incapacity.

His request for a fourth term is extraordinary; it is ALMOST UNPRECEDENTED.

Has Mr. Keliher extraordinary, unprecedented reasons?

Has he ranked high among his colleagues at Washington?

Has he served his district so much better than his predecessors, all of whom were refused four terms in their time?

No. He has been quite an obscure Congressman. He has served his district at least no better than the worst of his predecessors and probably much worse.

A Congressman can do his duty by casting his vote on the right side of every question and by making his influence as strong on the right side of questions as his capacity and opportunities will permit.

But the American public is not exacting of its public servants. A Congressman is usually forgiven if he fails to exert his utmost efforts in the cause of the right, if only he stands up and is counted on the right side.

That Mr. Keliher has failed to distinguish himself at Washington ought not, perhaps, to be counted seriously against him. But to have voted wrong and those votes on important questions is a breach of duty that no sensible constituency will forget or forgive.

Such is Mr. Keliher's record.

We pass his votes on little matters and shall deal with one of the several important questions on which Mr. Keliher was wrong—ALMOST WICKEDLY WRONG.

Mr. Keliher VOTED AGAINST THE PURE FOOD BILL. This law is just what its title says it is, a law to secure to the American people PURE FOOD.

When Mr. Keliher voted against it he voted against pure food for the American people. We do not exaggerate. We are not trying to magnify an error into a great wrong.

Mr. Keliher did all any man can do, who, as a public servant, attempts to prevent his people from being POISONED by bad food and ROBBED by fake medicines.

The ordinary citizen will say, perhaps, that the pure food bill must contain something objectionable which its title does not disclose for, otherwise, no man not utterly abandoned to all decency and sense of public rectitude could vote against it.

But that is not so. In its purpose and in its operation it is a beneficent law intended to remedy a terrible condition into which the cold-blooded, money-getting lust of the age has brought the food we eat and the medicines we take.

Poison in our food, deadly drugs in our medicines have attacked alike childhood and old age, health and infirmity; the citizen at peace in his home, the soldier at war at the front.

This law was intended to prevent and DOES actually prevent a continuance of hidden poisons in the food and medicines we buy.

That you may know the character of the bill we quote the essential passages from this simple but effective law. It prohibits any drug to be sold whose "strength or purity fails below the professed standard or quality under which it is sold."

Think of a man voting against such a provision in the interest of the public health.

It prohibits in candy any "MINERAL SUBSTANCE OR POISONOUS COLOR OR FLAVOR OR OTHER INGREDIENT DELETERIOUS OR DETIRMENTAL TO HEALTH, OR ANY VICIOUS, MALT OR SPIRITUOUS LIQUOR OR NARCOTIC DRUG."

In food it prohibits any substance from being "MIXED AND PACKED WITH IT SO AS TO REDUCE OR LOWER OR INJURIOUSLY AFFECT ITS QUALITY OR STRENGTH."

What excuse do you imagine a sane and respectable man can offer for voting against such provisions as these?

It prohibits any substance from being "SUBSTITUTED WHOLLY OR IN PART FOR ANY ARTICLE OF FOOD."

It prohibits any article of food from being "MIXED, COLORED, POWDERED, COATED OR STRAINED IN A MANNER WHEREBY DAMAGE OR INFERIORITY IS CONCEALED."

It prohibits the selling of any article of food which consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed or putrid animal or vegetable substance or any portion of an animal unfit for food OR THAT HAS DIED OTHERWISE THAN BY SLAUGHTER.

What is the motive of the man who votes against such a law?

We don't know.

But the motive, whatever it was, could not have been patriotic.

Such was Mr. Keliher's record on one recent question before Congress.

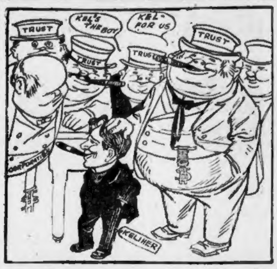
What do you think of it, citizens of the Ninth District?

Does it entitle Mr. Keliher to a fourth term, an honor you have denied to all his predecessors?

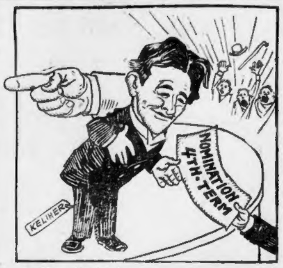
Do you desire to hear more of his record? There is more and it is not good. Mr. Auerbach, his opponent, will discuss it upon the public platform to-night.

We advise you to hear Mr. Auerbach to-night. If you live in the Ninth Congressional District you certainly should hear him so that you can decide with clearer intelligence whether you want him, or a man like Mr. Keliher to represent you in Congress.

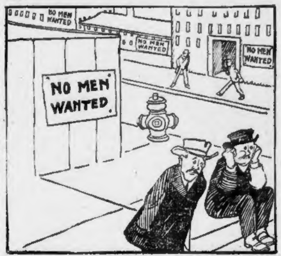
WOULDN'T IT MAKE YOU MAD



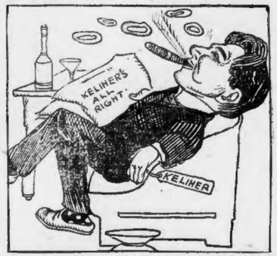
1—After you had always pleased your employer, and—



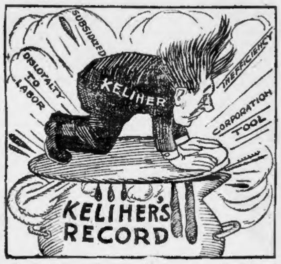
2—Your district, ignorant of what you were doing, had handed you a fourth nomination—



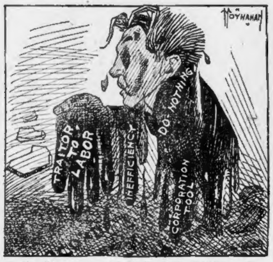
3—And the unemployed in your district WEREN'T ON TO YOU—



4—And you were satisfied, for you were GETTING BY—



5—And then, all of a sudden, you saw the lid coming off and you tried to hold it down, but—



6—It blew up and YOU GOT YOURS. Now, wouldn't that k erfoozle you?

WOULDN'T IT MAKE YOU MAD?

AUERBACH'S ATTACK ON KELIHER'S RECORD

The following contains the salient points of the speech of Junius T. Auerbach, Independence League candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, attacking the record of John A. Keliher, the Democratic candidate:

(Delivered in the Pierpoint Schoolhouse, Hudson Street.)

The Society of Unfaithful Public Servants has had some recent additions in the nation, and the Ninth Massachusetts District is about to add another. The name of John A. Keliher, a man the district has honored time and time again in ignorance of his character and in ignorance of his work. I can hardly blame the Democrats for being ignorant of it. I, myself, was ignorant of it.

They produce a letter of congratulation that I wrote to Keliher on his nomination. It is a common and a courteous thing to congratulate one who wins. I did it in ignorance that through fraud, chicanery and deception he had again deceived his constituents. I knew he had made mistakes and I mentioned it in the letter, but I did not think his official life was one long record of deceit and that in return for official honors he was constantly returning ingratitude, wronging his people, depriving them of business, increasing their hours of work and acting like a paid servant of a greedy oppresser.

I am not going to praise myself much, but if there were the black spots in my career and the treacherous selling out of friends, neighbors and constituents that there is in Mr. Keliher's, you would have heard of it before now. They have delved deep, let them face me with a result.

Keliher is a foe of the small business man and of the workingman. They talk the Philippines, the tariff, the negro situation in Brownsville, and they throw in a lot of Boston city politics in these campaigns waged for the re-election of such men as Keliher. They obscure the real issue from the voters. The real issue is simply this: "Does he act in good faith toward the people he is chosen to represent?"

Keliher is as bad a man as ever sat in the halls of Congress. He started out pretty well, but he became a wire, and he danced and twisted as trusts and corporations worked the wire.

Keliher is interested in only one or two things, John Keliher and John Keliher's pocket-book. He is not interested at all either in the workingman or the workingman's slender pocket-book.

You know what the Pure Food and Drug Bill is in general, and the safety of yourself and family depends upon it. Before this bill some manufacturers sold food and vegetables made out of glucose and paint, the alleged harmless powders contained morphine and choral, and food was branded wrongly, had false labels and names. Hardly a medicine was pure. Beef, iron and wine contained about everything but beef, iron and wine, and in order that the corporations might make a few extra dollars the lives of your family were daily put at hazard. Societies and organizations, business and scientific, every self-respecting man in the community were demanding a change.

The bill was killed year after year until it came up and was supported by such an outburst of outraged public opinion and public sentiment that scared even the most hardened, but it did not scare Keliher. He was still in favor of rotten food and poisoned drugs.

Is that the kind of a man that can obscure such a record by calling himself a Democrat, by labeling himself a regular party man? His record does not appeal to me, and I do not believe that it will appeal to a single man in this district, nor do I believe that it will to any woman in the Ninth Congressional District. If you like it, vote for him; be a regular; but if you don't like it, if you would like a change, vote for me. When you go into the voting booth, think of the long hours a man has to work, think of the railroad men that Keliher wanted to work in the Winter without vestibules, in storms and sleet, the children that he did not want playgrounds for, because it might make the tax rate a few cents higher!

Think of the friend of poor food, long hours, the general of the Injunction Corps, the hater of the eight-hour day; think of these things.

TWO SICILIANS DENY MURDER

Rosario Jaormino and Cesare Zengari, two of the six Sicilians on trial in the Superior Criminal Court charged with murder in the second degree in connection with the fatal stabbing of Peter Z. Needham, an employe of the Union Freight Company, on Atlantic avenue on the night of August 15 last, took the stand in their won behalf to-day and denied they were near the scene of the crime.

The taking of evidence was finished at the forenoon session to-day.

FISH BOARD SHIP ON WAVE

Thousands of fish, including dogfish, cod, hake and pollock and a porpoise were thrown aboard the steamer Ligonea by a great wave which swept over the vessel near Diamond Shoal lightship on its way here. Dogfish continued pursuing cod even after the mass of fish struck the deck. The crew gathered a big supply of food fish and a score of savage dogfish were killed. The porpoise escaped.

LOST BOYS IN WOODS ASLEEP

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 26.—After an all-night search by firemen, police and a half-hundred citizens, Charles Kirby, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Kirby, No. 122 Hollis street, and Edward, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy, No. 132 Hollis street, were found asleep in the woods near Whitney's bridge, between this village and Holliston, early to-day.

The two boys, with several older companions, went in search of chestnuts yesterday afternoon and became lost. They had wandered until, tired from their long tramp, they were obliged to rest and quickly fell asleep.

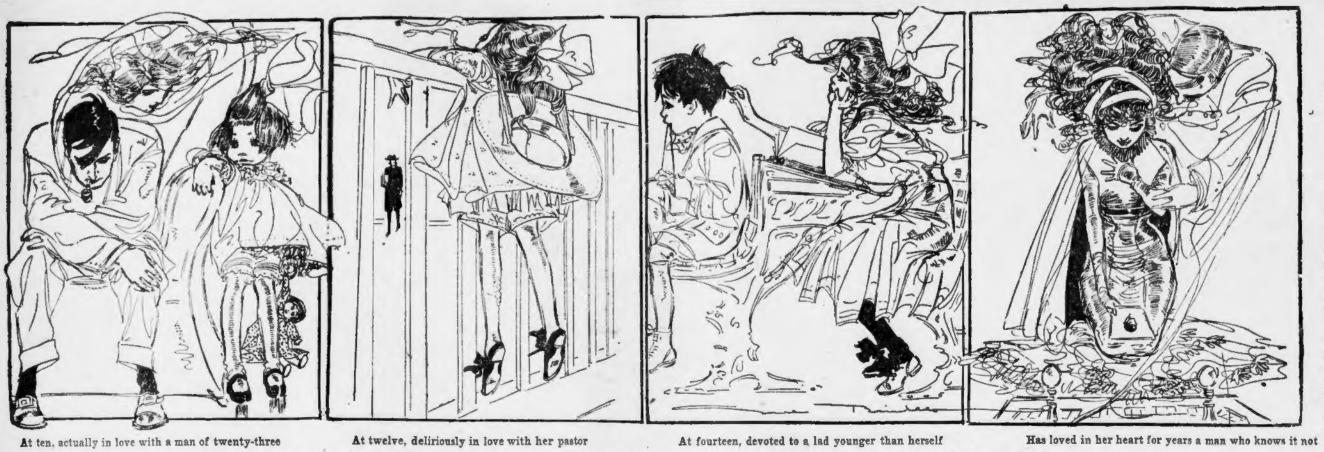
THE GIRL WITH A HUNDRED SELVES

The startling confessions of an unknown girl writer, revealing her inmost secrets

By ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?



At ten, actually in love with a man of twenty-three

At twelve, deliriously in love with her pastor

At fourteen, devoted to a lad younger than herself

Has loved in her heart for years a man who knows it not

Nell Brinkley's illustrations for "The Girl with a Hundred Selves," which was not written by her, but by a girl who has kept her identity a profound secret.

The Romantic Self

IF every woman were to admit the whole truth about her Romantic Self, there would be such revelations as would turn topsy-turvy the whole hoary-headed civilized world that thinks itself so hugely wise.

Stolid men, who believe they understand their sisters, wives and sweethearts, would wake up with a shock to find themselves face to face with total strangers.

Mothers, who are sure they know the innermost secrets of their daughters' souls, would stand rubbing their eyes before the lightning flashes of blinding discoveries.

Cold Conventionality would receive a blow in the eyes that would make it see stars for all time and eternity.

If every woman would admit the truth and nothing but the truth about her Romantic Self, thousands of staid, plodding, practical business men who fancy themselves unloved would be jerked out of their lethargy to discover adoring maids burning rose-shaded candles before their pictured faces.

In Love with Men Unknown

Men whose greatest passion is politics, or racing, or poker, or the stock market; men who would scoff at telepathy and love, would sit up in electric astonishment could they know that women to whom they have never spoken a sentimental word are daily sending wireless messages to them and fondly imagining they are receiving messages in return.

If every woman would admit the whole truth and nothing but the truth about that sentimental self of her that dreams away the hours in delicious tortures of doubt and faith, she would say that there is scarcely a time in her life when she is not weaving golden fancies about the head of some unsuspecting man.

Come now, confess it, girls and women! Isn't it true? Isn't it the gospel fact that if you were, right now, at this moment, called upon to bare your hearts to X-ray investigation you'd scream out in a glow of shame and terror, "No, no, no! I can't; I can't!"

Imagine, then, the fright that seizes me when I realize that I am baring to you my very heart of hearts; that I am flinging into startling black and white the sacred thoughts which all my life I have kept close guarded until now!

Beautiful to Tell the Truth

Yet there is something wonderful, something immensely beautiful, in the knowledge that I can sit here alone in my room, a girl unknown to you, and pour out to you the beauty and passion of my Romantic Self. Isn't it strange to think that under no other conditions could I do it; that only because you do not know me I am free to make a full confession?

What a strange world it is, after all, girls and women; what a very queer world it is that would make it necessary for a girl to conceal her name in order to be herself! But it is so. I am a voice, an unknown voice, calling to you out of the world; an unknown voice, crying to you with the whole strength of me, telling you the truth.

Let me confess it then, before I have lost the courage. Let me say that I, for one, am not ashamed to admit the loves of my life; not ashamed to acknowledge that always, always have I been in love with love. From the age of ten up to the present day I have been madly infatuated with the mere idea of loving.

First Love Affair at Ten

At the age of ten I was eagerly devouring every love story that I could reach; and I do not exaggerate when I say that even that early in life I was dreaming about the One Man who would some day come to make me "happy ever after."

Yes, and at that age I had my first sweet love affair, for I fancied myself actually in love with a young man twenty-three years old! A handsome, winning, simple-hearted youth he was, with honest blue eyes and a brown mustache. But in my dazzled eyes he seemed a very god! I laugh when I fancy to-day a god with a mustache.

At twelve I was deliriously in love with my pastor, a gentle, scholarly man of forty, and I would sit through interminable church services in a rapture of delight, just to be able to see his face above the Bible and hear his voice intoning solemn Scripture.

Ardently in Love at Fourteen

At fourteen I developed a really remarkable attachment for a lad at school several months my junior. This school girl infatuation was a serious, heart and soul affair with me. I don't believe a grown woman ever loved a man with more ardor and complete absorption than I loved this brown-eyed, careless hearted, unsuspecting lad of thirteen.

He was a lad of brilliant mental gifts—the son of a professor—and I am sure he never dreamed of the romantic feelings I cherished for him.

That love of mine was the spur to my best achievements at school; it kindled my whole mind into an ardor of desire to make an exceptional record in my studies. And to think that not once did he ever suspect it! Why, during the entire experience we had only three conversations.

Only once did he pay me any real "attention." That was on a golden afternoon when in a glow of boyish embarrassment he walked home from school with me. But the boys teased him so unmercifully, and he was so supremely bashful, the entire affair was hopelessly nipped in the bud.

Isn't it curious, girls and women, how it nearly always happens in life that the people we dream about and love madly in our minds are rarely people we ever come to know? We just go on loving them and dreaming about them, and they go their way and we go ours.

Loved a Man Secretly for Years

There is a man I have loved in my heart for years—a man who has not the slightest suspicion of it, for we do not really know each other well at all. Yet I have extracted unbelievable happiness out of caring for him in this beautiful, ethereal way.

Often I have fancied that he cared for me. Oh, there have been times when I have been sure, sure that he was thinking of me. The swift, sweet consciousness would come rushing upon me like a rain of rose leaves, and I would say gaspingly, while every nerve and fibre of me thrilled to the thought of him: "He is thinking of me now—now!"

But was he? That is the enthralling, fascinating thing. That is the delicious mystery. Did I imagine it, or did he really, at that hour, yearn toward me in thought, as I yearned toward him?

Oh, I wonder if men can love that way; if it is possible for them to feel the thrilling ecstasy that requires no personal caress or presence; the love that feeds on dreams and imaginings and exquisite thought communion?

Love Is God's Gift of Splendor

Isn't it wonderful—that Romantic Self of women that keeps love singing in their hearts, despite bitterness and disillusionment? Isn't it a miracle to stop the mouths of scoffers?

Don't be ashamed of it, girls and women; don't be ashamed of the golden sense that makes you interpret all the universe in the language of love! It is God's gift of splendor to you. Be proud of it; be thankful for it. Exult that it is yours!

Early Engagements

Calf Love a Passing Ailment, Like Mumps or Measles

By DOROTHY DIX

A youth of the tender age of eighteen writes to me that he is desperately in love with a woman five years his senior, and asks my opinion of the propriety of engaging himself to the lady.

Don't do it, son!

Calf love is as passing an ailment as the mumps or measles. It is just a hectic fever, mighty engrossing and worrying while it lasts, but in a week or two, with proper treatment, it will all be over, and you will be well again.

It isn't a chronic complaint, like a lesion on the heart, from which one never recovers.

DOROTHY DIX.

There are plenty of chances in matrimony, son, without taking any chance on what you are going to be and like yourself when you grow up. Therefore, give yourself the benefit of the doubt. Don't tie a knot with your tongue, while you are still a mere infant in arms, that it will take heartbreaks and shame and divorce lawyers to untie when you arrive at man's estate, and find out what sort of a wife you really want and need.

Typical Case of Calf Love

Of course, you say that you are very mature for your age, that you have seen a lot of the world, and are "wise," and all the balance of it, but it isn't true.

Every boy that ever lived thought and said the same thing. A half dozen years later he looks back and laughs at his folly, and wonders what on earth he ever could have seen in that brainless little chit Susie Brown, or that heavyweight Marian Jones, that could have made him even fancy he was in love with her.

And then he fetches a prayer of thanksgiving that he didn't marry her, while a cold shudder chases up and down his spine as he thinks, just supposing he had!

For a man's taste in women changes and the feminine charms that attracted him in his boyhood no more appeal to him in his maturity than do the pink ice cream and chocolate soda water, for which his soul used to hunger in his youth. On the contrary, they both give him that same sick, sinking feeling of having had enough and too much.

There are no more pitiful tragedies in the world, son, than those in which high-minded, generous-hearted, romantic boys fall victims to their delusions about being in love.

For, look you! You are not the first lad who ever thought himself in love; and the mere fact that you are in love with a woman five years older than yourself proves your case typical.

Practically every boy that ever lived has been through the same experience, for the minute a youth finds out that his pulses can flutter, and gets to the place where he can distinguish between a pretty woman and an old one, he diagnoses his case as one of undying affection.

Takes a 100 to 1 Shot

Sometimes there is no one to stretch out a saving hand and keep him from committing suicide by marrying while he is under this hallucination, and he lays upon shoulders too weak and young to bear them the heavy load of matrimony. If he is poor, by that act he seals his doom, for he can never get ahead with a family to support, and you will find him, except in rare cases, an old, worn-out, broken-down man at forty-five.

The boy who marries also takes a 100 to 1 shot at domestic happiness, because he risks his own development. The woman he marries may be good enough and intelligent enough, and cultivated enough for his mate when he is only a crude, raw gosling; but what if he grows, as so many men do, into a beautiful swan, with wide, strong wings, capable of soaring into the upper air?

Observe the people you know, son. Do you think that Jones, with his broad, tolerant outlook on life and his culture and his charm, would have married that stupid little Mrs. Jones if he had waited until he came to himself?

Would Smith, who is so brilliant a conversationalist abroad, who is the wit and toast of every dinner table but his own, but who rarely speaks at home, have married Mrs. Smith, who never understands a word he says, and who does not take the slightest interest in anything but clothes and servants, if he had waited until he knew what sort of a comrade he needed in life?

No, no! You know they wouldn't. And worse still, they know they wouldn't.

Nine-tenths of the matrimonial misery is the direct result of early marriage. It is the boy husband who becomes the middle-aged rounder.

The French have a proverb that the roue makes the best husband. This is not because he has seen and known the wickedness of the world, but because he is old enough when he marries to have reached his own mental stature and know what he wants in a wife.

Matrimony is none too certain a game anyway, son; but if you sit into it while you are still a boy, fate loads the dice with which you play, and you haven't one chance in a million to win out.

Becoming engaged while you are still a boy is scarcely less hazardous.

What generally happens in a long engagement is that the poetry of it gets tarnished, the fire and thrill peter out, and even its sentiment gets moth-eaten and dingy. It is a burden on the man and a cruel injustice to the girl, and no man has any business asking a woman to marry him until he can also set the wedding day.

The young boy who asks a girl to wait for him while he goes out into the world to make his fortune can only justify his foolhardiness by his youth. He is so young he does not realize what he is doing. If he is honorable, he is tying himself down for life before he has even begun to live, and if he is dishonorable he is wantonly sacrificing a woman's life.

Bound by a Fetter of Folly

The boy goes out into the great university of life. He learns, grows, develops, changes from boy to man.

He comes to belong to another world than that of his early love, but some day he knows that he must go back and make good on that engagement. His love has flickered and gone out. His heart may even be another's.

If he has the courage, he tells the girl that he has outgrown his boyish affection, and there is one more sour old maid in the world, a woman who has been defrauded of her springtime of love and happiness by waiting on a vain hope.

If he lacks the courage, and is of the stuff that martyrs are made of, he goes back and keeps his troth, and marries the girl, and both are miserable ever after.

So, son, pass up the early engagement! Flee it as you would the pestilence, and take this as an additional straight tip—Any woman of twenty-three who would be willing to engage herself to a boy of eighteen is a candidate for the feeble-minded asylum. There is something wrong with her thinks.

He Knew the Way to Make Poetry Pay

It Didn't Help Him With Estelle's Dad, but It Had a Bearing on the Tariff

By KENNETT HARRIS

"IT don't amount to shucks," said the storekeeper.

"Shucks make good fillin' for mattresses if there ain't nothin' better," retorted Washington Hancock. "You can make a right good door mat outen shucks. You take a twelve or fourteen inch board 'bout three foot long an' bore holes all through it with a inch auger an' pull shucks through the holes until you've got 'em all filled an' trim the shucks off even an' you've got a mat that can't be beat. If it gets wore off all you've got to do is to put in more shucks."

"They're good for stuffin' out horse collars, too," said Marvin Parsons.

"Billy Peavey says that out West they roll cigarettes in 'em," supplemented Sol Baker, "an' I was readin' in the paper that you c'd make pow'ful good maple syrup outen nothin' but corncobs. How about it, Rufe?"

"What I get is made outen pure, unadulterated maple sap from maple trees back in Vermont," declared the storekeeper. "When I said that Wash's argyment didn't amount to shucks I meant it didn't amount to nothin'. You take the teriff on steel rails——"

"You come right down to it an' you'll find that 'most anythin' amounts to suthin'," said Hancock. "That reminds me of Clay Kinlock. He's a feller that uster live over in Nodaway. There was a bull passle o' folks that 'lowed Clay didn't amount to shucks. Clay was allus readin' po'try an' speakin' pieces at the lit'rys an' he wore his hair long an' hated to work.

He Began Sparkin' Estelle

"Fin'ly he got to sparkin' a gal name o' Estelle Simmons. Estelle wuz a mighty good-lookin' gal an' her old man wuz rich as mud an' there wuz a plenty o' fellows after her. She'd most made up her mind to take Ed Graves when Clay came along.

"Ed was a right clever boy, no slouch of a worker, an' he was well fixed, too, so old man Simmons was tickled to death. Ed wasn't tonguey, though, an' Clay Kinlock was."

"There's more like him," sneered the storekeeper. "I don't see what that's got to do with the teriff."

"You wait," said Hancock calmly. "I ain't through yet. Old man Simmons raised Ned about it. He said Clay didn't amount to shucks an' he wasn't goin' to have him lallygaggin' around. Estelle 'lowed that he wuz with ha'f a dozen like Ed.

"'You know better,' says the old man. 'It's jest becus he tells you that your eyes is like di'munds an' stars—which they hain't—an' your cheeks is like roses—which is a durn lie—an' you've got a marble brow an' coral lips an' lily hands an' a form like the willer an' a voice like silver bells an' all that gum-swizzled frizzled collicky hog-wash.'

"'Tain't, neither,' says Estelle.

"'Tis, too,' says the old man. 'You needn't to tell me; I've heard him. You'd look well if you looked like all that. I'd quit farmin' an' show you around at ten cents a head.'

"'I'd have somethin' to say about that,' says Estelle.

Clay Hears an Ultimatum

"'You've somethin' to say about 'most everythin',' says the old man. 'I'm goin' to have a little talk about matters an' things with Clay.'

"Which he done. The next time Clay come around, which wuz the next evenin', the old man met him at the gate.

"'What do you want here?' he asks.

"'I come to see Estelle,' says Clay.

"'What do you want to see her fer?' asks the old man.

"'Becus I love her,' says Clay. 'I thought you knowed that. But to see her is to love her, love but her an' love forever.'

"'What do you propose to do about it?' asks the old man.

"'I want to marry her,' says Clay. 'What is there in the vale of life half so delightful as a wife?'

"'What do you reckon you're a-going to live on?' asks the old man. 'I know blame well you ain't got no money.'

"'We need no wealth,' says Clay. 'Where love is, gilded splendor ain't ness'ry. We shall be happy with a crust. A feast of reason an' a flow of soul where souls are mated beats the stalled ox completely to a frazzle.'

"'Mabbe,' says the old man. 'I don't see no reason flowin' from you, though, an' a young an' growin' family won't get fat feedin' on soul. Po'try won't buy a dress pattern o' calico or put flour in the bar'l.

"'Now, looky yere. Next time you come around here you show me that you're wuth anywheres from $1,000 to $1,500, an' I'll let you an' Estelle have the settin' room to yourselves up to 10 o'clock. You come around afore that an' I'll take a club to you. If that don't work, I'll try birdshot.

"'The third time, afore you start out you'd better make up the po'try that you want put on your tombstone onless you're satisfied with "Afflictions sore long time he bore, physicians was in vain," or some o' the other stand-bys.'"

Where the Tariff Came In

"I don't see what all that's got to do with the teriff," remonstrated the storekeeper.

"You hold your hawses," said Hancock. "Clay turned right around an' walked home an' packed his valise an' started out for St. Joe. Next thing he wuz in Mound City practicin' law, an' it wuzn't but a little while afore he had all the cases he cou'd handle. When he got up an' talked to a jury he'd have 'em all wipin' their eyes an' sniffin an' blowin' their noses inside o' five minits.

There wasn't nuthin but he had a piece of po'try to fit. Later on, when he stumped the district for Sen'tor Vest, he rung in his po'try again, an' that wuz the kind o' po'try that flayed a man an' then poured pepper an' vinegar on the raw. That got him into the Legislature, an' the next thing he was lawyer for the railroad—or maybe that come first.

"Anyway, inside o' five years he wuz worth two or three hundred thousand dollars, more or less. That goes to show that even po'try amounts to suthin' if you know how to use it. It's like everythin' else."

"I s'pose Old Man Simmons wuz willin' to have him marry his gal then?" said Parsons.

"Estelle? She married Ed Graves six months after Clay went to St. Joe," said Hancock.

"Well, where does the steel rails come in?" asked the storekeeper.

"There wuz steel rails all along the road Clay was attorney for," answered Hancock.

MILLIONAIRE BAND MAKES DEBUT HERE

Knapp's Millionaire Band, which made its Boston debut at the Colonial Theatre last night, won praise for its fine rendition of a program composed most all of classical music. Leader Carl Edmarde responded with encores to the hearty applause. Miss Florence Drake Leroy, soprano; Otto Meslob, cornetist, and Ulric Gilgras, piccolo, gave solos which added much to the band music. The band will give its second concert next Sunday evening, November 1.

Love Triumphant

HELEN'S lips are drifting dust,
Ilion is consumed with rust;
All the galleons of Greece
Drink the ocean's dreamless peace;
Lost was Solomon's purple show
Restless centuries ago;
Stately empires wax and wane
Babylon, Barbary and Spain—
Only one thing undefaced
Lasts though all the worlds lie waste
And the heavens are overturned;
—Dear, how long ago we learned!
There's a sight that blinds the sun,
Sounds that live when sounds are done;
Music that rebukes the birds,
Language lovelier than words;
Hue and scent that shame the rose,
Wine no earthly vineyard knows;
Silence stiller than the shore
Swept by Charon's stealthy oar,
Ocean more divinely free
Than Pacific's boundless sea.
—Dear, how long ago we knew!
Ye who love have learned it true.

When Hair Goes Wild

A Girl May Think It's Artistic, but it's Slovenly

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE girl with wind-blown hair straggling all over her face and streaming to the four winds of heaven may look exceedingly in a picture, but she won't do in real life.

In a picture all the accompanying details add to the piquant, artistic effect; but in real life, she simply looks like a very slovenly young person.

If she has a head "sunning over with curls" it is not so bad, but for the straight-haired lass—no, no, no!

And even Miss Curlylocks looks prettier if the curls are all crisp and burnished and shipshape.

Ask a Man What He Thinks

Ask any man you know, and see what his opinion of the girl with an untidy head will be.

First and foremost, all men admire neatness. They are not artistic, and they don't care a pin for artistic productions in the matter of wives or sweethearts.

How would you look at the breakfast table with your hair falling into your eyes and over your cheeks?

Do you think your husband would gaze at you in admiration?

Not a bit of it. He would look at you disapprovingly and wonder why in creation you couldn't be as trim and smart looking as Mrs. Jones or Miss Smith.

All the good clothes in the world won't make you look smart unless you put them on properly and keep yourself immaculately neat.

The woman who employs a lady's maid never looks disheveled nor untidy.

Every hair on her sleek, well-groomed head is in its proper place.

Now, of course, we can't all afford a lady's maid, but we can dress our hair neatly and becomingly.

Don't Get Mistaken Notions

Don't be carried away with the idea that you will look as pretty as the girls in the pictures if you allow your hair to fly about, for you won't.

Remember that the flyaway girl is not the marrying girl. She may be all right to flirt with, but a man wants something different for a wife.

I know a little girl—she is a housemaid—and every time I look at her I think, "What a dear little wife you are going to make for some man." And, judging by the number who call on her, several young men think so, too.

She is the demurest, neatest, cosiest little person imaginable. Her trim waist is neatly belted in; her cotton gown fresh as a daisy, and her collar and apron white as snow. Her hair is as neatly dressed as though she were a duchess. She is a perfect picture.

First of all, be neat, then add any little artistic touch your soul may crave, but never sacrifice neatness to art, especially if you care to meet the approval of the men folk, and I have yet to find the normal girl who does not.

Gather your flying locks into place; tuck them neatly where they belong, and use enough hairpins to keep them there.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BETTER NOT ACCEPT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a young man to give his lady friend presents, such as jewelry, etc., if they do not call each other sweethearts? I have kept company with this lady for one year.

READER.

IF a girl is not engaged to a man, it is much better for her to accept no presents of jewelry from him. Books, candy, pictures, etc., are all right, but valuable presents should only be accepted after engagement.

GIVE HIM UP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty-six and have been going with a young man of thirty-one for the last six years. We think a great deal of each other, at least I do of him. For the last two years he has got angry with me at trifles and run out of the house, and I would write and he would come back. When he did come back he would swear at me. Two weeks ago he got angry with me. He promised to meet me one night after church, but did not. I did not write to him, for he has told me he was a fool to give up his freedom for a girl like me, and he would make me apologize, and if I did not do it the way he thought he would keep making me until he was satisfied. He tells me when he is not angry that he loves me, and I have been fool enough to believe it, but now I have not felt badly because he has not come up, for I don't think he loves me. I have been good to him and have given him lots of nice presents, and he has given me several. Now, do you think he will ever come back, and do you think I ought to write to him again? He has spoken of a time when we shall be married, but never names the day. I have some money saved, and have given him $100 to start in business, but he has never paid me back, and he always wants to borrow from me.

A. M. M.

YOU are wasting your time on an absolutely worthless man. I am sorry that you let him have your money, for in all probability you will never get it back. Do not write to him, and do not listen if he tries to renew the friendship. You are far better off without the friendship of such a man. Other men will keep away from you if you waste your time on such a good-for-nothing man.

TO MY THIN SISTERS!

Cameron Mills, N.Y., July 15, 1908.

I have been so greatly and generously benefited that I think it my duty to say a word to you publicly.

I had been thin and scrawny practically since birth and after trying all the remedies I could hear of, decided that nothing could do me any good.

Since the C. L. JONES CO., of Elmira, N. Y., offered a free trial treatment for thinness, however, I made up my mind that it would cost me nothing whether it did me any good or not, so I sent for and promptly received it without cost or even a promise.

The free trial did me enough good to encourage me to keep on with the treatment and I did so.

At the time I started the treatment I weighed 95 pounds. I now weigh 135 pounds and cannot express my delight for I have been almost re-created.

My figure is full and round with no ugly hollows; I am perfectly developed in every way and am in perfect health.

I have hesitated greatly in going before the public in this way, but the Jones people are so sincere and honest in their work that I believe it only justice that every thin woman should know it.

Yours truly, Mrs. K. B. Rising.

P. S. The FREE TRIAL TREATMENT of Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder to which I refer can be obtained by simply sending a re[illegible] to the C. L. JONES CO., 305 L, Realty Bldg., Elmira, N. Y.

HOLD FINAL DRILLS FOR GREAT CATHOLIC PARADE

CATHEDRAL BEING ELABORATELY DECORATED FOR CELEBRATION OF CENTENARY.

Final drills are being held to-day by every one of the hundreds of Holy Name Societies in Suffolk, Middlesex, Essex, Norfolk and Plymouth Counties, and Major John J. Leonard, the chief marshal, is convinced that the great parade next Sunday afternoon will not only be the largest ever held in Boston, but that the men who take part will be able to march and manoeuvre creditably.

Drills were held by the different Boston societies yesterday all over Boston. Down town more than 1,000 men were drilled in the file of twelve formation which they will be expected to take in the parade next Sunday.

"I am perfectly satisfied with the way things are going," said Major Leonard to-day. "We are ready for the word to march, and I believe that the demonstration will be one long memorable in this city. Surely in church affairs nothing like it has ever been seen here. With the exception of the first division—Boston, Roxbury and Brookline—we have a good idea of just what the parade is to be. We have practically a complete roster of the parade, and I expect that Marshal Joseph A. Sheehan will soon hand in his roster of the first division."

The work of decorating the Cathedral of the Holy Cross is well under way. The color scheme within is to be in green and gold and other Autumnal colors. A large force of men is working on the decorations and the undertaking will be complete by to-morrow afternoon.

The exterior decorations are practically complete with the exception of the electric arch which is to surmount the main door of the temple. Above the main door of the Cathedral is a legend which is being read to-day by thousands of people as they pass the edifice in Washington street.

"To the Eternal Honor of Jesus Christ, the Son of God and the Savior of the World, Who Upon the Holy Cross Died for Our Redemption."

This is the legend expressing in these few words the spirit which pervades Catholics of New England to-day who are few words the spirit which pervades the founding of the See of Boston.

Archbishop Calls Meeting of Prelates

Archbishop W. H. O'Connell issued the following request to-day:

"The prelates visiting, and of the archdiocese, together with the officials of the archdiocese, are requested to meet in the committee room of Symphony Hall on Wednesday Evening, October 28, at 7:30 o'clock to await the arrival of the civil and ecclesiastical dignitaries."

The doors and windows of the front of the cathedral are draped with American flags. No insignia except the national emblem is used in the decorating of the exterior of the cathedral. By the time the decorators are through with their work the cathedral will be fittingly adorned for the greatest celebration New England Catholics have ever held.

Reports which Major Leonard is receiving to-day from the different division commanders indicate that if the weather next Sunday is good, 35,000 to 40,000 men will be in line.

Should rain interfere with the parade next Sunday it is understood that it will be postponed for one week and occur the following Sunday.

"I will not talk about any postponement at all," says Major Leonard. "I am praying that we have good weather, and I believe we will have it."

A final meeting, that of the chief marshal's staff, is to be held on Friday evening next in St. Rose's Hall, No. 17 Worcester street. At that time the last orders will be issued, and then everything will be ready for the great day, the final demonstration in honor of the centenary of the establishment of the diocese of Boston.

SALVATION COUPLE TO WED TO-NIGHT

LYNN, Oct. 26.—A hallelujah wedding takes place in the First Presbyterian Church to-night, when Miss Mary A. King and Perry St. Clair Graham of the Lynn Salvation Army will be married. The ceremony will be public, and will be performed by Colonel Gifford of Boston, division commander of the army. Colonel Gifford will be attended by his staff.

FIGHTS SIDEWALK CASE.

Charged with expectoration on the sidewalk at State and Devonshire streets, Ernest Flentje, a wealthy Cambridge manufacturer, appeared before Judge Duff in the Municipal Court and was fined $2. He appealed and gave cash bail of $50. Flenje denied that he is guilty. He was represented by Attorney Francis Hurtubis as counsel.

R. J. DWYER HEADS SUFFOLK BOARD

Richard J. Dwyer, president of Division 32, A. O. H., was elected president of the Suffolk County Board, defeating three other candidates, at the biennial election yesterday in Dahlgren Hall, South Boston. Cornelius A. Spellicy of Division 6 was elected county vice-president by one vote over Thomas Lally of Division 15. There was no opposition to William T. Fleming of South Boston as county recording secretary. Edward Callahan of Charlestown was re-elected county treasurer, and Thomas J. McMackin of Boston was chosen county financial secretary.

SAYS HUSBAND CHOKED HER; GETS DECREE

Mrs. Grace Bradford Banchor, wife of John Banchor of Boston and Havana, described to Judge Dana in the Suffolk divorce court to-day various cruelties which she declared had been practiced on her by her husband, saying:

"We were married in 1900, and I lived with him until 1906. He had an ugly temper and drank to excess. He struck me, blackened my eyes three times, knocked me down, threatened to shoot me, pushed me against the wall and over a chair and choked me, and all for no reason whatever. He even flew into a rage when I cashed the regular monthly allowance check he had his business firm send to me."

Mrs. Banchor was granted a divorce decree nisi. She is about thirty years old. She wore an olive green suit and hat to match for her divorce hearing, and was voted by general opinion the best groomed woman who has come into the present divorce session.

The Banchors spent the Spring and Summer in Boston and the rest of the seasons in Havana, Mr. Banchor being South American representative for a Boston manufacturing firm. Mrs. Banchor's mother, Mrs. Harriet Bradford of this city, corroborated her daughter's testimony. The case was not contested.

MONTGOMERY GUILTY OF $469,000 THEFT

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—William Montgomery, former cashier of the Allegheny National Bank, is guilty of abstracting $469,000 from the bank, according to the verdict rendered by the jury in the United States District Court this afternoon. It is not expected that he will be sentenced on this charge until the other cases against him are tried.

"MUST TOILER BE PUNISHED FOR BEING DOWNTRODDEN?"

"Should a man marry on less than $15 a week?

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson's declaration that under ordinary circumstances he would refuse to marry a man getting less than $15 a week has caused wider discussion than the Rev. Mr. Johnson could have foreseen. The BOSTON AMERICAN has presented arguments on both sides the question by students of economical conditions, essayists, authors and philanthropic workers, and to-day it presents the unsolicited opinion of a man who deals with the subject from the viewpoint of the worker. The writer, E. Arpin, of No. 23 Summer street, North Adams, declares that the real question is, "Shall the toilers be permitted or forbidden the blessings of love, family and home?" This is Mr. Arpin's letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir: "The man with the hoe." Should he or not be allowed to marry? This is your question, I believe, raised by Dr. Johnson's recent statement that, ordinarily he would refuse to marry a couple, unless he was assured that the man earned at least $15 weekly. Should the toilers, the real producers, the great majority of men and women in this country be permitted or forbidden the blessings of love, home and family? That is the real question. For, if proper statistics could be got at, there is no question but that the average wage of the toilers would be found sadly wanting if weighed in this proposed "$15" balance. This raises another question: If a couple "would probably starve together" on $15 a week, how large a family should such a couple be allowed to raise for the wolf at the door?

Another question: Does the command, "Be fruitful and multiply," apply to the fortunate few only, or does it apply also to the workers, who are the back-bone, the very life of a country? Is it not adding insult to his thousands of years of injury to tell the workingman to his face, here, to-day, in free America, that he is so unfit, that he should not be permitted to reproduce his kind? Just think of it!

To a thinking mind it is plain that the worker does not receive his fair share of the fruit of his labor. He always has been and is still imposed upon and despised by the idlers of the race. But, what kind of righteousness is this that would punish the downtrodden for being downtrodden?

Because he hath so little, must it be taken from him "even that which he hath?"

Is this all there is of hope for the "weary," of rest for the "heavy laden"?

Is this the way that civilization ever repays its benefactors? Crucify them? Who, if not the toilers, are the defenders, the saviors of a country, yesterday, "to-day and forever"?

Is it possible that "the man with the hoe" alone is able to appreciate the cultivation of that priceless flower, gratitude, in the hearts of men?

TWO WOMEN HELD IN $800

Judge Dunn in the Municipal Court this afternoon held Loretta McCadden and Gertrude Kiehn, the Broklyn young women who came to Boston with Moran and Duncan, the two alleged Dorchester robbers, in $800 bail each until October 29 on a charge of violating the statutes. Moran and his friend Duncan are accused by Ernest J. Jenkins with holding him up Saturday morning in Edward Everett square.

FINAL WEEK OF N. E. FOOD FAIR

To-day begins the fourth and final week of the big New England Food Fair in Mechanics building. A special feature for to-night will be telegraph returns from the general elections in Canada, which will interest the thousands of Canadians living or visiting in Boston.

Another Canadian feature will be moving pictures of the recent tercentennial celebration in Quebec, with the parades and other sights of that monster occasion.

The Bostock Consolidated Trained Wild Animal shows continue to be a splendid feature of this big fair. Among the other features are the Mexican National exhibition, the exhibits by various American States, the demonstration of work in the Boston public schools and the National Magazine exhibit.

DULL SEASON IN MARRIAGES

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 26.—Marriages are falling off in Lynn. From January 1 to October 26, 1908, only 744 marriage licenses have been taken out here, against 1,019 for the corresponding period of last year.

City Clerk Joseph W. Atwell says:

"I believe this is due to the hard times. It is particularly noticeable that the people in better circumstances are holding off in marriage. The foreign element shows no decrease in marriage, but the American element does."

HARVARD GETS READY TO CLASH WITH BROWN

After the narrow escape at Annapolis on Saturday the Crimson football players got busy to-day to prepare for that hard game with Brown at the end of the week.

The team came out of the scrap with the Middies in fine shape, much to the delight of the coaches who can now pound the work along fast and furious for the four big games in a row which are on the calander before the season closes up.

A tie game with the Navy is a feat not to be overlooked. Of course the Crimson should have beaten a small institution like Annapolis, but the Middies are made of the kind of stuff which will beat a lot of teams yet and the Army eleven up at West Point realizes that they are in for it after that game Saturday with Harvard.

The hard contest with the Midshipmen enabled the Harvard coaches to see a lot of flaws which an easier game would not have brought out, and the football doctors will get to work in earnest in the next six days to strengthen the weak spots.

The only players who got roughed up in the Navy battle were Cutler and Hoar, and a little rest will put them in fine fettle to continue in their places.

Harvard was severely tested playing the Middies and the result is not displeasing to the coaches whose reputations were at stake.

They saw the Middies get the jump on the Crimson team and know that speed must be developed to a greater degree than it now exists in the team. It was a Yale style of game which Harvard had to deal with as the Middies were instructed in the Eli methods and the outcome has some bearing on the big contest at New Haven on November 21.

Though Brown was defeated by Lafayette, Princeton was held to a 0-0 score by the same team and shows that Harvard has a foe which will make a game worth seeing next Saturday.

SILK PATCHEN BEST GREEN PACER OUT IN NEW ENGLAND

Silk Patchen, the pacing mare that won eleven straight races in New England this season, and, starting green, has retired with a record of 2:13¼, made on a half-mile track, in which heat she paced the first half in 1:03 and jogged home. This is the mare bred by C. W. Marks of Chicago, the former owner of her sire and dam, those two famous pacers Joe Patchen, 2:01¼, and Split Silk, 2:08¼.

"I remember very well being present at the purchase of the 'iron horse' by Mr. Marks in the Spring of 1897, he paying for him $15,000 at auction—the largest price ever realized under the hammer for a harness race horse in the city of Chicago," writes Joe Marque from Chicago. "About two years later Mr. Marks became the owner of Split Silk, 2:08¼, that handsome and game but somewhat erratic daughter of Bourbon Wilkes, who had won the Chamber of Commerce stake and six other important pacing races in 1898.

"In 1900 Mr. Marks bred Split Silk to Joe Patchen and Silk Patchen was the product. Her breeder was always very choice of her and was so anxious to have her develop without being hurt that she was, I think, three or four years old before she was broken to drive, and even then she was not hurried. Mr. Marks enjoyed driving her himself very much and finally began using her occasionally at the matinees.

"It was not until last season, when she was 6, that he allowed her to start in public races, and then only twice, when she showed very well, while in her work she indicated that it would be easy for her to learn to pace in 2:10.

Sold at Auction.

"Last Spring Mr. Marks sold all his horses at auction, and at this time I mentioned Silk Patchen to several Chicagoans who were looking for a likely green pacer as one, in my opinion, with a future. However, following that rule which seems to prevail among turfmen, who generally find something distant more attractive than anything in their own dooryards, none of them purchased her, and the hammer fell at a bid of $1,300, made by L. R. Morrill of Brunswick, Me., who still owns her and with whom she has raced so cleverly this year, more than winning herself out.

"I understand that $2,500 was refused for her at Brockton, Mass., where she defeated a field of fifteen without an effort. They say that she has not been brought to a drive in any of her races, and that it is a sure thing that she can pace a half-mile track in 2:10 or better.

"As she does not wear 'the tanglers,' it would look good as if she might be one of the star pacers of next season, for she is a large, strong, sound mare, put up for wear and tear, and surely she is bred to be game. It must be a great pleasure to Mr. Marks to know that she has turned out so well."

Sonoma Girl Is in Texas.

Lotta Crabtree has been pretty quiet on the turf this year with her celebrated trotting mare Sonoma Girl, 2:05½, but it is learned her campaign is not yet over by any means, as Dick McMahon has shipped her to Dallas, Texas, for the two weeks' meeting, and then she goes to Phoenix, Ariz., for the Territorial Fair.

In Miss Eva Wilkes, the Boston horseman, Walter J. Bates, owns about the cleverest piece of horseflesh in this section. Though only a two-year-old, yet a prominent expert said the other day he would bet a little that she could show a quarter in 32 seconds, or better, over the Charles River speedway, good day and track. She is entered in three pacing futurities to be decided next year.

Herb Davis, the man who got all the money when the pacing gelding Chesterfield, 2:11¼, headed the race summary at Buffalo several years ago, has secured the Auburndale Inn, near Riverside, in Auburndale. It is always agreeable to horsemen when driving to have a warm fireside to drop in and chin with the proprietor about horses while their own steed is having a rest for the return trip to the home stable.

CORNHUSKERS AFTER INDIANS

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 26.—Interest in football in the Nebraska camp was given a decided boost yesterday by the announcement that Graduate Manager Eager, on behalf of the Cornhuskers, had entered into a contract for a post-season game with the Carlisle Indians on December 1 or 2. The game is to be played on Nebraska field and the Cornhuskers are to have the choice of dates.

Manager Porter, acting for the Carlisle management, came to Lincoln to-day and accepted Manager Eager's guarantee. After the Redskins play in Lincoln they will likely book a game in Denver for Saturday, December 5.

Retired and Undefeated Heavyweight Champion of the World.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—The recent unfortunate legislation in Wisconsin, which was to the effect that the professional boxer would have to look elsewhere for employment, was in the nature of a dire calamity to the men who follow the glove game in any connection.

Milwaukee probably was the best city, from a financial point of view, that ever supported the ten-round game, and the sudden sweeping off the pugilistic map of this city has for the time being completely demoralized the boxers in that section of the country.

Such men as Billy Papke, Stanley Ketchel and Joe O'Connor have told me in confidence of the enormous houses drawn in Milwaukee. I would scarcely have been able to credit the figures had they been supplied me by men of less repute. A city that would support short ten-round contests along such fat financial lines deserved a better fate than to be deprived so unceremoniously and so unjustly of the best sport in the land.

This drastic and unmerited action on the part of the Wisconsin lawmakers only brings to the front all the stronger a fact which I pointed out some time ago, that the West is the best and the only place for the boxer these days.

Praises Papke.

San Francisco and Los Angeles are practically the only two cities in the country at present that can pull off contests between men of known reputation, of any satisfactory length. The news that New Orleans is to be reopened to the boxing game is glorious news indeed, and I hope, most sincerely hope, that the news from the Southland has been conservative instead of exaggerated.

As for those six-round affairs in the East—they are equal to no fights at all. It is like asking a man with a banquet appetite to be satisfied with a lunch-counter bill of fare to turn these short and unsatisfactory bouts loose in front of the hungry patrons of the game who are ravenous for a diet of the real thing.

This closing up of the game in the Middle West, temporary or permanent as the case may be, means an increased rush of the stars of the game for the Pacific Coast. This Western invasion will result in the California public being given several championship battles during the Winter months.

There are four white fighters before the public to-day that I have great confidence in. They are Billy Papke, Battling Nelson, Abie Attell, and last but not least little Johnny Coulon.

Anytime that either of this classy quartet of scrappers starts, rest assured you are going to get a good run for your money. Papke is a cool headed fighter who uses his brains upon all occasions. He has twice shown me that he possesses all the cool intelligence required of a champion.

Sizes Up Champion.

Take his fight with Ketchel, his first meeting with the Montana man at Milwaukee, for instance. In that battle Ketchel floored Papke, and I have the latter's own word for it that he didn't know where he was at for the following five minutes. Just the same, Papke retained possession of his senses to the degree that he never made a false move, but instead, fought a perfect battle on the defensive until he could collect his exploded senses and start fighting on the aggressive again. He not only weathered this storm, but was actually coming on strong at the end of the ten-round battle. The above is an instance of where headwork stands out high over everything else. Just one wrong move and Billy probably would have been a victim of Ketchel's known knock-out punch.

Then to go clear around on the other side of the house, figuratively speaking. Let's take Billy's action into consideration during the last Papke-Ketchel fight at Vernon. In the very first round Papke knocked his man down and put him in immediate distress. What would nine out of ten of the ordinary run of fighters have done under the circumstances? They would have thrown aside all caution and tried to end the battle with one blow.

Hugo Kelly tried this same thing on Ketchel. He whipped Stanley all through the first round, and then came out to finish him in the second. We all know what happened to the big Italian in that second round.

Papke faced the same situation, and again he failed to make one false move. Without giving Ketchel, who is dangerous so long as he is on his feet, a chance, he fought in a cold-blooded and deliberate fashion until he had administered one of the most cruel and decisive beatings ever handed to a man in the ring. These two instances go to prove that Papke is long on brain power. As to his fighting ability, he is champion of the world in his class; more could not be said.

Nelson's Record.

I have a warm spot in my heart for Battling Nelson. This rugged little fellow who now stands all but supreme in the lightweight division, never to my knowledge, sidestepped an opponent no matter how dangerous the latter may have appeared.

The first time you hear a man talking who is inclined to knock the Battler just hand him the Danes' record and ask him to point out an "easy" spot in it. This will settle the argument immediately. I never looked Bat's record over carefully until recently, and then I was positively surprised at what I found. Here are just a few of the tough nuts of the lightweight brigade that Nelson has passed the time of day with in the ring: Joe Gans, Jimmy Britt, Abe Attell, "Boer" Unholz, Terry McGovern, "Kid" Sullivan, Young Corbett, Aurelia Herrera, Eddie Hanlon, Martin Canole, Clarence English, Charley Neary and George Memsic.

When you stop and consider that Attell is the only one of the above who remain in the game to-day, Nelson's fighting ability strikes home in a most forceful manner. Another thing to consider is the fact that Nelson was not always in a position to demand of his rugged opponents that they make the 133-pound notch. Several of his hardest battles have been under such one-sided conditions that the boy practically was fighting welterweights. Some of Nelson's early day fights were of such a vicious character that it is a marvel how the lad ever weathered the storm and fought himself into the championship. Small wonder that his features are decorated with the scars of honest battle.

Attell's record reads like a book of pugilistic dreams. The Hebrew is a wonder. There is no other word to express my appreciation of his ring services. Coulon is still in the "comer" class, but he is breezing along strong under a heavy pull from his managerial father. Another year and I look to see the Chicago midget clean up with every bantamweight in the land.

HAL CHASE WILL BE ON DECK AGAIN NEXT YEAR

Hal Chase will probably be playing first base for some American League team next year, despite his announcement that he would never again come East.

Things are not breaking any too good for the outlaw State League, of California. Every club, it is claimed, lost money this year, and some of the backers are getting rather tired of their proposition. The national commission also intends to make war on the organization, as it hurts the Pacific Coast League, which is under protection.

That everything is not moving smoothly was proven the other day when Elmer Stricklett of the Brooklyn team, signified a desire to return to the East. Stricklett has written owner Ebbetts that he is tired of outlaw ball and will join the Brooklyn team in the Spring.

Stricklett jumped the Brooklyn team a year ago to pitch on the coast. He was offered an alluring proposition by the San Jose club, as well as a good business. The club lived up to its contract for a couple of months, but of late Stricklett's envelope has been far short of the amount in the original contract.

Chase Had a Grievance.

The jumping of Chase to the coast league was because of his inability to get along with Manager Elberfeld. When Griffith was in charge of the Highlanders Chase was one of the best behaved players in the business, and was always playing his head off to win. Just as soon as Elberfeld took charge he lost courage and his playing rapidly deteriorated. He finally jumped the team to join the Stockton club, which had been after him for several years.

Chase claims that he will never again play in New York, but he probably would if some man other than Elberfeld is selected as manager. Frank Farrell is willing to forgive and forget if Chase will only come back home. He needs a first baseman, and there is no getting around the fact that there is only Chase.

Should Chase, however, stick to his determination not to play in New York a number of clubs would be more than willing to dicker for his services. It would be an easy matter to get several men in exchange for Chase, who would greatly strengthen the Yankees.

Jimmie McAleer could use a Chase in his infield. Jennings would probably prefer Chase to Rossman. Joe Cantillon would be willing to talk business for a deal that would include his present first sacker, Freeman. It's pretty nearly a cinch that if Chase plays ball next year it will be in the American League.

Should Change Their Name.

President Roosevelt received much support in his contention for simplified spelling.

So why shouldn't the baseball scribes receive some encouragement in a move to protect the patrons of the game, the printers and the typewriters, from the annoyance of unusual and mixed names in the scores.

Years ago most of the players in the big league were sturdy Irishmen, and bore some good old name like Casey, O'Brien, Ryan, Moran and the like. To-day it's different, for every nationality is represented in the big leagues. The names of some of these players would give a man with an ordinary jag the delirium tremens if he atempted to pronounce them. These are the chaps who ought to have their names remodeled.

There are three men in fast company to-day who have had their surnames changed to help out, and the scheme has worked out beautifully. Karl Aectenback of the St. Louis Nationals plays under the ordinary name of Charles, while Schreckengust of the Chicago Americans and Peltheimer of the St. Louis Browns have shortened their names to Schreck and Pelty, greatly to the convenience of the public. Connie Magillicuddy was considerate enough to change to Connie Mack, so why shouldn't the following bunch submit to these changes:

Hoblitzell to Hobbs.
Konetchy to Koney.
Jacklitsch to Jack.
Hoelskoetter to Hoster.
Higginbotham to Higgins.
Schweitzer to Sweitzer.
Abbaticchio to Abby.
Covaleski to Coval.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Pine Bluff, of the Arkansas State League, disputes the Cubs' claim to the world's championship because they never met its team.

Christy Mathewson is now a life insurance agent. He should make his first chase at Fred Merkle. Regards to disgruntled bug.

More than 7,000,000 attended the championship games in the big leagues during the last season, but we were unable to get the names.

Billy Murray didn't land the pennant, but he caused many a fear in the bosoms of Chance, McGraw and Clarke during the season.

Hans Wagner is going to kill 10,000 birds this Winter to forget about the loss of the pennant. Next season the feathered hosts should be great pluggers for the Pirates.

Frank Delehanty, a member of the noted family of ball players, recently was enrolled as a medical student in college for a four-year course in medicine. He played with New Orleans in the Southern League the first part of the last season, going to the New York Americans later on.

John Ganzel, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, was caught by a deputy game warden on a train near Grand Rapids and his bag of game confiscated on the grounds that he was a non-resident of the State and hence had no right to hunt there.

Geography lesson—Chicago is famed for its bum beef, second-story workers, chin scatterers and pennant winners.

Cobb is going to play with the baseball tourists in Japan. It is said that the country is fairly dippy over baseball. At Sakai-minat and Takamatsu they were hanging ten feet deep around the tickers during the world's series, while Funabashi is reported to have gone broke backing the Giants in the National League race. These examples of interest are mild compared to the good, old, wide-open town of Ichinomiya, where the Spalding guide is one of the class books at the High School.

Cove, Covel, Coral, Coveleski, Covaleski, Covaleskie and Covelesky are among several well-meant stabs at the spelling of Coveleski, a famed Pennsylvanian, who lives in Shamokin.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Billy Gibson, matchmaker of the Fairmont A. C., held a long talk with Johnny Oliver, manager for Tommy Murphy, last night. Gibson wants Murphy to go against Packy McFarland on Thanksgiving day. Oliver will meet McFarland's manager to-day to talk over a match. It was the general opinion last night that Murphy would make a better showing against McFarland than Cross.

Further elimination of the lightweight ranks will be made next Tuesday night at the Manhattan Casino at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street and Eighth avenue, New York, the home of the Olympic A. C., when Jack Goodman and Bert Keyes meet in their six-round bout. In Goodman the members of the club will see as shifty and clever a boxer as Joe Gans. The West Side will go broke if he does not win.

Terry McGovern and Young Corbett are picking up a little change down in Virginia at the big fair. Charley Mahood and Phil McGovern are with them, and Corbett will try to get in shape for a few six-round bouts in New York.

Walter Little received an offer from the National Athletic Club of Philadelphia for a fight between Little and Grover Hayes, but turned it down, as the time set for the fight could not allow Little time enough to get into condition. He, however, wired that if they would name a later date he would accept the match.

OVATION FOR GEERS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 22.—With more than twenty trotters and pacers, Ed Geers, the noted driver and trainer, returned to the two-minute track to enter Winter quarters. He was met at the station by enthusiastic business men, who have planned a demonstration in honor of the veteran "Silent Man's" thirty-odd years in Grand Circuit or other races.

QUILL HAS TOUGH FOE TO BOX IN LOUGHREY

PRINCIPAL BOUTS ON THIS WEEK'S CARD

MONDAY—Bill McKinnon vs. Bartley Connolly, Portland, Me.; Tommy Sullivan vs. Tom Crawford, Philadelphia; Dave Deshler vs. John Marto, New Haven; Young Erne vs. Young Otto, Battling Hurley vs. Charley Griffin and Johnny Coulon vs. Young O'Leary, New York; Mike Gannon vs. Dick Nelson, Pittsburg.

TUESDAY—Young Loughrey vs. Tommy Quill, Bill Warren vs. Jim Pendergast and Willie Riley vs. Charley (Twin) Miller, Armory A. A.; Billy Glover vs. Jim Bonner, Leach Cross and Willie Fitzgerald and Eddie Kelly vs. Frankie Neil, New York.

WEDNESDAY—Charley Sieger vs. John Dohan, New York.

THURSDAY—Rudolph Unholz vs. Cyclone Thompson, and Johnny Murphy vs. Lew Powell, San Francisco.

FRIDAY—Sam Langford vs. Jack O'Brien, New York; Kid Sullivan vs. Kid Sieger, Baltimore; Tommy O'Toole vs. Harry Baker, Philadelphia.

SATURDAY—Johnny Coulon vs. Charley Harvey, Philadelphia.

The excellence of the entire program arranged by the Armory Club for its meeting to-morrow night has caused expressions of surprise on all sides, and has insured the spacious club house having a large number of members in attendance when the bell rings for the fun to commence.

The main bout of twelve rounds between those grand performers, Young Loughrey of Philadelphia and Tommy Quill of Brockton should prove to be one of the most enjoyable fistic treats ever seen hereabouts.

Quill is a great favorite with the Armory Club members, because he never falters in his work, does but little stalling and is always ready to mix it up as fast as the fellow that opposes him.

To-morrow he is called upon to face the best boy that local enthusiasts have pitted against him. In a letter to Mlah Murray, from Philadelphia, the well-known promoter, Jack McGuigan says that in the Quill-Loughrey bout the Armory Club is offering its members the best bout ever staged here.

The Philadelphia boxer is at present in big demand all over the country. Only twenty hours after closing to box Quill here Loughrey's manager, Jack Hanlon, received an offer from James J. Jeffries to bring Loughrey to Los Angeles to box Freddie Welch, the English lightweight.

Jeffries wants Loughrey and Welch for Thanksgiving Day, but it will be all off if Loughrey should be beaten by Quill Tuesday night.

And the way that the Brockton boxer is training at his home seems to indicate that he intends that Loughrey shall not travel to the sun-kissed shores of California on the present occasion.

While the opening bout is only going six rounds, it will introduce the giant from Australia, Billy Warren, one boxer who has something besides hot air to back him. Warren is going against the ex-motorman, Jim Pendergast of Dorchester, and when these giants face one another there will certainly be a warm time in the home of sport.

The middle event, introducing Fred Miller, who claims this city as his home, but who has been doing all his training and boxing in Philadelphia, and who meets Willie Reilly of South Boston for eight rounds, can be guaranteed as a match where plenty of action will be witnessed and where the winner will know that he has been to the races before the decision of Alderman Dan Donnelly is rendered.

Sporting News Brietly Told

FOUR NEW YORK BOUTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Four Manhattan and Brooklyn athletic clubs plan for bouts to-night. The four clubs will throw open their doors to their members despite Commissioner Bingham's order prohibiting fights at the clubs in Greater New York.

Sporting men of the city believe that the larger athletic clubs will weather the present storm and that the only clubs to suffer by the order of Commissioner Bingham will be the organizations of the "mushroom" variety which have sprung up with remarkable swiftness of late. In fact, the latter clubs are probably responsible for the police commissioner's order.

KRAMER BREAKS RECORD.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—Frank L. Kramer, the champion bicycle rider, broke his own world's record for twenty-five miles, unpaced, in competition at the Vailsburg track, riding the distance in 57m. 26 4-5s. His previous record, made in 1901, was 57m. 52 4-5s. Kramer rode against a field of strong, experienced long-distance cyclists and was superior to them at every point. The announcement of the world's record figures was recived with great enthusiasm.

BROKE HAMMER MARK.

ORONO, Me., Oct. 26.—Joyce, '11, of Bar Harbor broke the college record for the hammer throw in the dual class meet, between the sophomores and freshmen. The first Marathon race over a five-mile course was won by H. K. Dyer, '10, who made the run in 29 minutes and one-half second.

WANTS MAT BOUT.

Henry Gaudette is ready to meet all wrestlers at 120 pounds, Kid Richards or Kid Byson of Fall River preferred. T. R. Letendre, Box 224, Nashua, N. H.

MORE HORSES FOR AUSTRIA.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 26.—John Splan has bought from Senator J. W. Bailey the brood mare Lily Young, by Young Fullerton, dam Nora T., by Ten Broeck, and her suckling filly by Prodigal. The mare and filly were bought for I. Schlesinger of Vienna, Austria, and will be shipped with Schlesinger's eight other recent purchases.

CHECKER CONTESTS ON.

The Wells Memorial Institute, 985 Washington street, has granted to its members who are interested in checker playing the privilege to invite all players to visit them as their guests in the game room Thursday evening, October 29, and engage with them in a team match, so far as the facilities will permit.

Samuel Grover, champion of New England, will be present on Thursday evening, October 29, at 7:30, and give an exhibition of his skill. All interested in the sport are invited.

SHRUBB BEATS THREE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Al Shrubb, the English distance runner, defeated a relay team composed of two Americans and one Canadian in a five-mile race. On the relay team "Bill" Allen of Buffalo ran 1½ miles, Jim Moynihan 1½ miles and Bill Davis, the Hamilton (Ont.) Indian, two miles. Shrubb led from the start, winning by half a mile. His time was 4:42 4-5, 10:13 2-5, 15:46, 21:08, 26:10 3-5.

YALE END BADLY HURT.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 26.—Yale's best end rush, John Kilpatrick, was found to have suffered a severely bruised knee in the game with Washington and Jefferson Saturday. He expects, however, to be able to return to the play by the Brown game November 7.

ANDOVER FAVORITE.

With the annual football conflict between Exeter and Andover Academies only two weeks off, the impression given by the showing of the two great prep. schools in their preliminary season, which ends next Saturday, is that Andover is the better.

HART TO FIGHT WILLIE.

Marvin Hart, the Kentucky heavyweight, has been matched to box John Willie at the National Athletic Club of Philadelphia on November 14. Jack McGuigan has been selected to referee the bout.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 26, 1908

"I Do Not Intend to Make the Slightest Comment"—Hearst

No Comment Was Necessary: Readers Will Make the Comment

On Saturday, before two great audiences in New York and Brooklyn, Mr. Hearst read letters proving that the trusts govern this country through bribes. Of the letters that Mr. Hearst gave to his hearers, and to all of the people of the United States, we select for your special attention two, PROVING THAT THE STANDARD OIL TRUST AND THE OTHER TRUSTS NAME MANY OF YOUR JUDGES, and, of course, control them.

No. 1.

"26 Broadway, Dec. 5, 1902.

"My Dear Governor—I am sure you will pardon any seeming presumption on my part in writing you on a subject in which, both personally and on behalf of my company, I am greatly interested. It is to urge the appointment, if at all consistent, of Judge Morrison of McKeen to the Supreme Court bench, vice Mitchell, deceased. Judge Morrison's character for ability and integrity needs no word at my hands, but aside from these great considerations, his familiarity with all that pertains to the great industries of oil and gas in the important relation they bear in the interests of the western part of the State make him especially desirable as a member of the court from that section.

"Hoping that it may prove possible for you to favorably consider Judge Morrison's appointment, I am, with very high regard, sincerely yours,

"JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

"Hon. William A. Stone, Harrisburg, Pa."

No. 2.

"26 Broadway, Sept. 5, 1900.

"Hon. Wm. A. Stone, Harrisburg, Pa.

"My Dear Governor—Will you permit me to say that if it seems consistent for you to appoint Judge John Henderson of Meadville, Pa., to the vacancy on the Supreme bench caused by the death of Judge Green, it will be a matter of intense personal satisfaction to me. I am sure I need not occupy your time with any argument as to Judge Henderson's fitness, either as to character or legal qualification. With high regard, I am, very truly yours,

"JNO. D. ARCHBOLD."

After he had read the first of these letters, Mr. Hearst said: "I do not intend to make the slightest comment."

Comment was not necessary. Mr. Hearst did his full duty, and rendered to men that think the greatest possible service by putting before them absolute proof of trust corruption in government and on the bench.

The comment that Mr. Hearst did not make will be made by the readers of his newspapers, and by other millions whom he has served in his exposures of corruption.

John D. Archbold, head of the Standard Oil's corruption department, wrote to the Governor of Pennsylvania, William A. Stone, asking him to appoint a certain man "to the Supreme Bench."

That man WAS appointed at Archbold's command. That man sits on the bench now, in the Superior Court of Pennsylvania.

Archbold wrote to the same subservient, shameful Governor and demanded the appointment of another man, John Henderson, to a Supreme Court vacancy.

And THAT man was appointed in accordance with Archbold's command, AND HE SITS NOW AS A SUPREME COURT JUDGE IN THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Readers, you have read these letters. You know that they tell the truth. What do you think about them? What do you think of these two old parties, Republican and Democratic, both owned by the criminals that own Standard Oil, by the shameless bribers, the open corruptionists?

What do you think of this man Archbold, alternately asking that men be appointed to the Supreme Bench and distributing checks, "certificates of deposit"?

Why is he out of jail? Why are the men out of jail that obeyed his orders? Do you know the answer? IT IS BECAUSE VOTERS DO NOT ATTEND TO GOVERNMENT. IT IS BECAUSE THEY VOTE LIKE SHEEP WITH ONE OR THE OTHER OF THE OLD PARTIES. IT IS BECAUSE VOTERS DO NOT CARE AS MUCH ABOUT THE GOVERNMENT OF THE COUNTRY AND THE HONESTY OF THE BENCH AS THEY WOULD CARE ABOUT AN OVERCOAT STOLEN FROM THE FRONT HALL.

That is the trouble with this country. The citizens in it are looking after their own pennies and their own comfort. They allow this scoundrel Archbold, this corruptionist, this shameful, canting hypocrite to steal their money by millions, and give it back to them in thousands. They allow this vile reprobate and dozens of men like him to appoint their judges upon the bench, to buy their Senators like McCarren, and their Congressmen like Sibley, and their degraded agents like Haskell.

And they, the voters, do nothing.

The citizens of this country deserve just exactly what they get. They pay no attention to their government after it has fallen into the hands of thieves. They pay no attention to the fact that their judges ARE THE TOOLS OF THE STANDARD OIL, APPOINTED BY THAT CORPORATION.

It is a disgrace to the citizens who do not think, or vote with thought, or pay attention to the government that was bought with the lives of their fathers.

Mr. Hearst has given you two letters from Archbold. EACH OF THOSE LETTERS PUT A MAN ON THE SUPREME BENCH IN THIS COUNTRY. How many others do you suppose were appointed in the same way? Are judges of this kind the exception? No, they are the rule, and you may as well know it.

Archbold, all over the country reaching out with his "certificates of deposit" and his "my dear Governor," puts judges in wherever he likes to.

But that is only the beginning.

You know that the criminal gambler Taggart puts in his judges; you know that the Braytons and Cranes put in their judges.

They haven't the power of appointment? True, but they have the power of NOMINATION. Who are the judges?

Are they not the men picked out by these political bosses? Does it make any difference whether governors appoint judges to please the scoundrel Archbold, or the Braytons, Cranes, Gastons, Mellens Tuttles, Drapers and the rest of them NOMINATE the kind of judges that Archbold wants?

The Democratic bosses put up one set of judges, SUBSERVIENT TO ARCHBOLD. The Republican bosses put up another set of judges, SUBSERVIENT TO ARCHBOLD.

It doesn't matter to Archbold which ones are appointed.

Isn't it about time for independent men to think and to vote as [illegible]

ONE THING AT A TIME.

A BIGGER NAVY.

The navy yard means so much to Charlestown voters that they will not be apt to forget on election day that Congressman Keliher is classed with those who are opposed to making the United States navy fit to cope with any country on the sea.

The Independence party stands for a bigger navy.

A bigger navy means more work for the Charlestown yard. It means more employment for citizens who live on Bunker Hill and around it.

The Ninth District ought to be represented in Congress by a man who will strive for as big naval appropriations AS THE SAFETY OF THIS COUNTRY DEMANDS.

Junius T. Auerbach is that kind of a man.

The Frozen Faces!

A Canadian Novel by Several Inauthorities

By C. B. Quincy

BILIOUS RAVEN, the Ojibberaway chief, had swiped a ham from the company's post at Montreal, where the Indians of the North gather every Fall to sell the furs they have succeeded in removing the inmates from.

Although Montreal is an isolated port, being cut off from civilization by the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, such conduct could not be allowed to pass. So Donald McSnecks and Kenneth McDingbat set out on the long trail.

The factors had a fine birch bark sled, pulled by twelve bulldogs of the purest blood. In addition to their tent, cots and food supply, they carried a canoe for use where the snow was too slushy for fast travel with the sled.

The cold as McSnecks and McDingbat started on their journey was intense. It was so cold that the silence got chilblains, and the mysterious stillness of the white spaces—the snow in Canada is white—became frostbitten.

Nevertheless, the determined pursuers pressed on their way after a pause for a bath and breakfast. At noon the cold was more intense than ever and the frost bit the faces of McSnecks and McDingbat, fixing them forever in the expressionless glare which caused the unsophisticated Ojibberaways to name them the Frozen Faces.

In the meantime Bilious Raven was keeping on the trail. Ever northward he pressed, in a dizzy panic;' ever northward he moved, as if to shin up the Pole for shelter.

The guilty ham was hung around his neck like a locket, for it was frozen too hard to eat. The silence of the vast North hung over him like a pall, so that he had to pause every now and then to brush it aside from his path.

The gallant bulldogs pulled the sled of the two Macs rapidly across the snow, gnawing down the trees that happened to be in their path, and occasionally catching a mosquito to sustain them in their terrible task.

The Frozen Faces pressed on through the Indian village of Ontario—where they learned that Bilious Raven had gone west and was headed for Chicago—across the Rockies, the Great Slave and the Great Scot Lake. Knowing the Indian character, the Frozen Faces paid little attention to what they had learned, but pressed on toward the Midnight Sun, which was also visible at 11:30 a. m.

Twenty days later they came across the ham, which Bilious Raven had evidently dropped in his mad rush north. The Frozen Faces carefully hung the company's property on a fir tree, where no Indians would dare to touch it, and kept on the trail.

Fifty days later they came upon Bilious Raven. He was lying on a bunk made of snowballs, evidently thinking the intense cold would conceal him.

At the sight McSnecks and McDingbat smiled. Their frozen faces cracked in a ghastly grin, and they fell across the form of Bilious Raven, the little group gradually freezing into a monument to the mystery of the great spaces of the North.
